

Commercial Point Man Installed Mason Grand Master

Jerry C. Rasor, a Columbus television personality, was installed as the Grand Master of Ohio Masons on Oct. 15 during the annual meeting of the Grand Lodge of Ohio in Cleveland.

Rasor was born in Scioto Twp., Pickaway County, and is a member of the Commercial Point United Methodist Church. He has been active in the American Cancer Society, Charity Newsies, Kidney Disease Foundation, Easter Seal Society and Kiwanis. He is a member of the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists and the national music fraternity, Phi Mu Alpha. He is employed by the Outlet Broadcasting Company and is a member of the WCMH-TV staff, Channel Four, Columbus.

His masonic record began in 1952 when he was raised to the Sublime Degree of Master Mason in Lockbourne Lodge No. 232. Before this most recent installation, he was elected Deputy Grand Master in 1976.

Roland Lattner of Columbus was appointed Junior Grand Deacon, the first office in the ascension through Masonic positions.

Rasor, of Commercial Point, said this year the Grand Lodge of Ohio will sponsor numerous public activities to reduce the misconception that

Other officers installed in the Grand Lodge were:

Daniel F. Iceman of Wooster, Deputy Grand Master; Charles A. Brigham Jr. of Cincinnati, Senior Grand Warden; Edgar L. Miller of Bellefontaine, Junior Grand Warden.

Demonstrators Disrupt Carter's Church

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four demonstrators who disrupted President Carter's church service by denouncing the neutron bomb are free on personal recognizance while the fifth is continuing his protest in jail.

The three men and two women, ejected from the First Baptist Church by ushers Sunday morning, were charged with "disturbing a religious congregation."

A sixth person who took part in the reading was not arrested.

Leaving the church, the President stopped briefly when another protester shouted for him to "veto the neutron bomb." Unruffled, Carter turned, asked, "What's that?" and then said, "They're fine young people."

Later, after returning to the White House, he told reporters: "I agree with their (the demonstrators') objective in

Private Service Set For Crosby

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A simple, low-key funeral is planned for Bing Crosby on Tuesday, a family spokesman says.

Crosby's body was to arrive in Los Angeles tonight, accompanied by his son Harry, 19, on a flight from Spain. Crosby died of a heart attack on Friday in Madrid, after playing a round of golf. He had listed his age as 73, although baptismal records list the crooner as 74.

The Roman Catholic service will be held at St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church in Brentwood. Crosby, a devout Catholic, will be buried in a family plot at Holy Cross Cemetery near his parents and first wife, Dixie Lee, who died of cancer in 1952.

Crosby's second wife, Kathryn, told newsmen outside their home in the San Francisco suburb of Hillsborough that the service would be a low Mass.

"He wanted only the children and myself," she said, "but I think there are those who worshiped him for 40 years who have a right to be there."

Weather

A high pressure center will bring fair weather and warmer temperatures to the area today. The high will be in the mid 50s. Partly cloudy tonight and Tuesday with a low tonight in the upper 30s and the high Tuesday near 60.

Hijackers Delay Destruction Of Plane

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — With one pilot dead and 86 hostages still aboard, the hijackers of a West German airliner landed in Somalia today and let two ransom deadlines pass without carrying out a threat to blow up the plane.

A West German government spokesman said in Bonn the pilot was apparently shot dead before the Lufthansa Boeing 737 jet took off late Sunday from South Yemen. His body was dumped onto the runway shortly after it landed without permission in Mogadishu, the Somali capital.

Ineligible Medicaid Is Wasteful

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal and state governments are wasting $1 billion in tax money a year in ineligible Medicaid payments, says the secretary of health, education and welfare.

Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. said Sunday that 4.7 million ineligible claims totaling $229 million were paid between April and September 1976.

"Now, if you project that for a year — that is just federal dollars — that is almost half a billion dollars, and the states are matching those payments; that is another half billion dollars," Califano said. "So just in terms of ineligible payments, we are throwing $1 billion a year away in this country."

The figures, taken from HEW's computerized review of Medicaid transactions, include payments to health care providers, such as doctors, and to recipients.

Califano commented on ABC's "Issues and Answers."

The review was instituted in April because the program for the needy has "grown like Topsy," but has received "inadequate attention" for several years, Califano said.

Called Project Integrity, the computer review already has looked at 250 million transactions involving pharmacists and physicians. It found 47,000 were questionable or improper.

HEW has sent the 2,500 most serious cases to the states, which are beginning probes of doctors and pharmacists in their jurisdictions. More cases will be referred to states in the future, Califano said.

The department previously announced some of its specific findings. For instance, a doctor said he performed three tonsillectomies on the same patient last year. A pharmacist filed a claim for 120 pills a day for 204 consecutive days for one person.

Califano also predicted the U.S. Supreme Court will uphold special school admissions programs for minority students.

He called it "perfectly legitimate" for schools to seek minority candidates and added, "I find it inconceivable that the court will rule in favor of Bakke."

Allan Bakke, a white male, claimed he was denied admission to medical school in California while less qualified minority candidates were accepted under a special admissions program.

The California Supreme Court ruled Bakke was a victim of reverse discrimination, and the University of California at Davis appealed. The U.S. Supreme Court heard oral arguments last week and is due to rule before the end of its term next summer.

The four hijackers have demanded the release of 13 terrorists imprisoned in West Germany and Turkey and payment of $15 million, but no effort to meet the demands was reported as the hijackers extended their deadline first to 10 a.m., EDT, then to 10:30 a.m.

The West German government let a Sunday deadline pass without any attempt at compliance. However, it sent negotiators to the airport in Mogadishu in an effort to save the hostages, who include a California woman with a heart condition and her 5-year-old son.

Armed soldiers surrounded the plane at a distance in front of the main terminal in the Somali capital — the jet's sixth stop since two Arabic-speaking men and two women commandeered it over the French Riviera last Thursday.

The West German government said it could not confirm beyond doubt that the dead man's body was that of the chief pilot, Juergen Schumann. But a spokesman said the dead man had a notebook containing the name Monika Schumann, the chief pilot's wife.

Monika Schumann, who has sons aged 11 and 2, told a German newspaper last week that her husband had expected his plane might be hijacked some day, and had told her: "If that happens, just stay calm. I'm not the type for dangerous heroics."

The death left 82 passengers and four crew members aboard the plane with the four hijackers. There was speculation that it would be dangerous for the plane to take off without a replacement pilot.

A spokesman for the Somali embassy in Nairobi said the plane was being refueled and was expected to take off again later in the day. But the Somali news agency said the government formed a ministerial committee including the West German ambassador to negotiate with the hijackers.

The Somali agency said a West German delegation led by a government minister was expected in Mogadishu shortly.

Crime Panel Demands Action From County Commissioners

The Citizens Against Crime Inc., an organization of Darby Twp. residents have "demanded action from the Pickaway County Commissioners to provide adequate police protection to the county."

A letter drafted by the Citizens Against Crime was hand-delivered this morning to the commissioners by John Frain, Orient, who is listed as a trustee of the incorporation. Other trustees are Rex D. Buller, Orient, and David L. Kohli, Derby. James H. Bolin, Orient, is the agent.

The letter, in part, said: Over the past several weeks certain concerned citizens of Pickaway County have brought to your attention the thorny problem of increasing crime, especially in rural areas.

"At our public meetings you gentlemen heard learned experts say that unless some positive action is taken, our crime problem will only get worse with the passing of time."

"Both the chief law enforcement officer of this county — Sheriff Dwight Radcliff — and other crime prevention experts have told both you and us that the initial effort must be made on the enforcement level. The sheriff has stated that with the funds provided his office by you gentlemen he can place only one patrol car in the field to cover the entire portion of the county east of the Scioto River and one patrol car for the area west of the Scioto River. This is an area of 504 square miles."

"It is the feeling of the Citizens Against Crime, Inc. group and of the sheriff that more patrol cars must be put on the roads before we can start to make a dent in the crime rate."

"The members of Citizens Against Crime, Inc. — acting in the absence of leadership and direction on the part of the county commissioners — are undertaking a program of homeowner and business education as related to crime prevention. We are taking certain other steps on the citizen level to help alleviate our problem."

"While we all realize rural crime is a county-wide problem, the current

Man Dies 82 Hours After Transplant Of Chimp's Heart

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Benjamin Fortes died today 82 hours after Dr. Christiaan Barnard and his surgical team put a chimpanzee's heart in the man's body to bolster his own ailing heart.

Fortes, a 59-year-old accountant, was the second man to receive a chimpanzee heart transplant and the first to get one as an auxiliary or "piggyback" pump. In 1964, Dr. James Hardy of the University of Mississippi replaced a 68-year-old man's heart with a chimpanzee heart, but the patient died two hours later.

A spokesman for Groote Schuur hospital announced that Fortes died this morning but gave no details.

Barnard was not available for comment, but a statement from the hospital was expected later in the day.

Fortes had been reported in satisfactory condition Sunday. But a spokesman for the hospital said it might take two weeks to determine if his body would reject the animal heart.

In the past three years, Barnard and his cardiac team have performed 17 successful piggyback transplants, but in each case used a second human heart.

In his first attempt with an animal heart, Barnard last June grafted a baboon heart to the heart of a 26-year-old Italian woman, but she lived only four hours. The doctor said then that the heart of a baboon was too small to do the necessary work and that he would use a chimpanzee heart the next time.

For the operation Thursday he used the heart of a 10-year-old male chimp imported from the Netherlands.

Matt McGowan, 21, 117 Kimberly Place, won the first annual YMCA - McDonald's Roundtown 10,000 Sunday afternoon. McGowan, a former standout cross country and track star at Circleville High School and Ohio Northern University ran the 6.2 mile course on the Stoutsville Pike in 32.01 minutes.

For finishing first in a field of 116, McGowan won a four-poster trophy, a t-shirt from the American Heart Association and his name inscribed on the permanent plaque in McDonald's Restaurant, South Court Street.

The first female finisher, Shannon Cline, 16, finished in the top 40. Cline, an Upper Arlington High School student, is a member of the girls track team and ran boys' cross country a year ago.

Tom Sykes, 22, Tarlton finished third in the 19-24 age bracket. Sykes was a star athlete at Logan Elm High School where he won the Bob Bowsher Memorial Trophy as the outstanding basketball player in the county.

Stormi Ann Guntisch, 10, Montrose, Michigan placed 46th.

Winners in all categories received trophies except the 40-and-over women's bracket in which a t-shirt was awarded.

Drive For Canal Treaty Ratification Stepped Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is stepping up his drive for Senate ratification of the Panama Canal treaty.

Carter set aside time today to meet with a new blue-ribbon committee of business and labor leaders, former military officers and members of past administrations who support the treaty, which is under fire from foreign-policy conservatives.

Members of the group, headed by Averil Harriman, the one-time ambassador to Moscow who has served as a government envoy in many capacities, organized the panel without official White House involvement, one aide said.

But others said the committee grew out of a breakfast for "opinion leaders" held at the White House recently by a task force headed by Hamilton Jordan, a top presidential assistant.

Members of the committee include Gen. Maxwell Taylor, former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; George Ball, former undersecretary of state; AFL-CIO President George Meany; Lady Bird Johnson; former senator and ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge; former Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott; Chairman Irving Shapiro of E.I. du Pont de Nemours & Co.; Chairman Robert Anderson of the Atlantic Richfield Co., and New York lawyer John McCloy.

The meeting followed a busy weekend at the White House:

—The President's church services were disrupted Sunday by protesters against the neutron bomb. Carter told reporters at the White House when he returned from church that he considers the demonstrators "fine young people."

Without revealing whether he will decide against deploying the bomb, Carter said of the protesters: "I agree with their objective in eliminating nuclear weapons." But the President added that he thought the group was "mistaken in trying to disrupt the church services."

—A knowledgeable administration official said Carter got a message from Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan in which Dayan denied characterizing their recent talks as "brutal" and said he found them pleasant and productive.

Israeli Ambassador Simcha Dinitz telephoned Secretary of State Cyrus Vance with the personal message from Dayan and asked that it be brought to Carter's attention, according to the official, who declined to be identified.

Carter said through a spokesman Friday he did not think the talks, held in New York earlier this month, were brutal and denied threatening Israel with isolation if it did not agree on preparations for Middle East peace talks.

—The White House made public on Saturday a Carter interview with newspaper editors and broadcast news directors during which the President said he is almost overwhelmed by all the things he is doing at once.

But Carter said during the session, which took place Friday at the White House, that he will not drop any initiatives because "I don't think it is in the best interests of the American people."

Carter has slipped below 50 per cent for the first time this month in his public approval rating.

Consumers Affairs Aide Believes In Independent Agency

WASHINGTON (AP) — Esther Peterson says she is convinced that the drive for an independent consumer protection agency will succeed, despite recent setbacks. "I'm not going to say when," she adds, "but I certainly think in this Congress that decisions will be made."

Mrs. Peterson is President Carter's special assistant for consumer affairs. Her mission, she explained in a recent interview, "is ... to help get this bill (establishing a consumer agency) through Congress."

That job is proving more difficult than most people expected earlier in the year. Both houses of Congress passed similar bills last year, but, in the face of a threatened veto by President Ford, failed to produce compromise legislation.

With Carter's support, backers of the concept predicted victory in 1977. They now concede they would lose if the issue came to a vote today. Mrs. Peterson said the reason for the problem is twofold.

"Number one, it was a very safe vote for people in the other administration because many people who voted for it knew that the president would veto it ... and a lot of those people changed when it became a reality." They changed, she said, "because of the second reason, which is the extremely strong opposition that has come from (part of) the business community..."

She believes the trend will turn around before the end of 1978. She said there is a growing realization in government that the consumer's voice is important and a growing realization in business that consumerism can be profitable.

Comparing the consumer movement to the drives for organized labor, civil rights and women, Mrs. Peterson said, "My feeling now is the consumer movement is the next of the popular movements ... People who say that the consumer movement is on its way down, I think, are missing the signs on the wall. I think it's quite the opposite. I think we're just beginning to surface ... Change takes time. You have to have patience."

Mrs. Peterson, 70, has plenty of experience in change and time. A native of Provo, Utah, she has been in Washington since the late 1930s. She was assistant director of education for the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, served as the union's lobbyist, was an assistant secretary of labor under President Kennedy and was vice chairman of the President's Commission on the Status of Women.

Rap Session Planned In TV District

Another informal session with Teays Valley Board representation and citizens in the district has been planned for Thursday.

The discussion, scheduled for 7 to 9 p.m. at the Scioto School, is a meeting with the people to hear complaints, comments and criticism about the school operation in the district.

Superintendent Benis Lutz said this is a good time for people to "share concerns and express views" about the activities in the Teays Valley Schools.

Accidents Are Investigated

The Pickaway County Sheriff's Office investigated two injury accidents over the weekend.

The first occurred at 2:50 p.m. Saturday at the intersection of State Route 62 and State Route 762.

According to the report, Sherman A. Day, 37, of Grove City, was northbound on SR 762 and had stopped at a stop sign at the intersection to wait for traffic to clear.

The report states that Day thought traffic had passed the intersection, but he failed to see a car driven by Linda J. Goolsby, 29, Washington C.H., who was westbound on 762. The two autos collided in the intersection.

Goolsby and two passengers in her car were treated at the scene by the Harrisburg Emergency Squad.

Deputy J. W. Evans cited Day for failure to yield the right of way at an intersection.

The second accident occurred at approximately 3:15 p.m. Saturday on Smith-Hulse Road, one and a half miles north of State Route 22.

According to the report, Ricky E. Seymour, 17, of Washington C.H., had started to go down a hill and had applied his brakes when the car started to skid.

The vehicle struck an embankment and flipped over in the roadway. As it flipped on to its top, it was struck by a car driven by Teddy Dollison, 37, of Williamsport.

Deputy Evans cited Seymour for reckless operation and operating an unsafe motor vehicle.

When, in 1964, President Johnson created the post of special adviser for consumer affairs, he named Mrs. Peterson to the job. She held the post for three years, later served for seven years as a vice president for consumer affairs of Giant Foods in Washington and, in April, was back in her old job at the appointment of Carter.

Leaning back in a chair in her office in the Old Executive Office Building next to the White House, Mrs. Peterson reflected on the changes that have come in the past 13 years.

Acceptance of consumerism did not come "until we began bringing industry in and showing that there was a commonality of problems and it could be helpful for them to understand."

President Unwilling To Accept Compromise On Energy Legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is unwilling to accept any compromise energy bill that contains any form of natural gas deregulation, the chairman of the Senate energy committee said today.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said that as a result, there may be no natural gas legislation enacted this year.

"The administration is going to be very tough and I'm pleased," Jackson said in an interview.

House and Senate conferees begin work on Tuesday on hammering out a compromise energy bill. Jackson is the head of the Senate's team of conferees.

Although the House has passed Carter's plan to lift the price lid on natural gas from $1.46 to $1.75 per thousand cubic feet and to extend controls to gas produced and used in the same state, the Senate has voted to lift controls from gas after two years.

"The administration holds all the cards," Jackson said. "Either there is no bill and the price remains at $1.46 or if there's a bill with deregulation, the President will veto it."

And Jackson said the administration has indicated it would prefer no bill at all to the Senate-passed measure.

Jackson had offered a "compromise" on the Senate floor during the natural gas debate that would deregulate gas prices after nine years. It was reluctantly supported by the administration at the time as preferable to the industry-backed deregulation bill that the Senate went on to pass.

Jackson's proposed compromise had been viewed as a possible middle ground for the House-Senate conferees to adopt. But Jackson said today that even this phased form of deregulation would probably be vetoed by the President.

He said he doesn't intend to even bring it up again.

The natural gas issue will be the last item the conferees consider so that if they remain deadlocked, it won't jeopardize other parts of the President's energy program, Jackson said.

Jackson said that he will work to get the conferees to approve natural gas legislation that the President will sign.

But he said at this point, no breakthrough appears in the making. The entire natural gas portion of the President's energy program may have to be bypassed this year, he added.

The conference committee will begin its work with the non-tax portions of the energy program.

Consideration of energy taxes will come later.

Hijackers . . .

Somalia, Vietnam and South Yemen were the three countries named by the hijackers as destinations for the imprisoned terrorists whose freedom they demanded. But the West German government said all three refused to accept the prisoners if they were freed.

The 11 West German terrorists whose freedom the hijackers demanded were the same group demanded by the German terrorists of the Red Army Faction who kidnaped Schleyer in Cologne Sept. 5. The kidnapers also demanded $6 million in ransom money, but the hijackers upped the ransom $9 million and added the two Palestinians.

The Lufthansa Boeing 737 jetliner was hijacked on a flight from Majorca to West Germany on Thursday by two Arabic-speaking men and two women armed with pistols and plastic explosives.

The 82 passengers included an American woman with heart trouble, Christine Maria Santiago, 44, of Santee, Calif., and her 5-year-old son, Leo. Another son reported that the State Department appealed for her release because of her health, but the hijackers refused after finding a two-day supply of heart medicine in her purse.

The plane's stop in Mogadishu was its sixth, after Rome, Nicosia, Bahrain, Dubai and Aden, the capital of South Yemen.

Insurance Covers Damage By Mice

METZ, France (AP) — An insurance company has been ordered to pay a $1,200 claim for damage to a car caused by a mouse trapped in the car's engine.

According to testimony, mice nesting under the car's hood became trapped by the fanbelt and damaged the auto's cooling system. The award covered the cost of repair work.

In the Senate, legislation is being considered that would temporarily block the government from reducing Medicaid payments to states that do not comply with federal requirements for independent medical inspections of nursing homes.

And the House is debating legislation to delay the Food and Drug Administration's proposed ban on saccharin for at least 18 months.

Although the House has acted on the full Carter energy plan, the Senate has yet to approve the tax parts. This opportunity could come on Friday, when the Senate may begin debating a "tax" bill approved by its finance committee that contains no taxes.

The committee voted late last week for legislation containing billions of dollars worth of tax breaks but none of the taxes Carter proposed to help save scarce fuels by making them more expensive.

The conference committee has the job of reconciling the energy bills passed by the House and the Senate.

The panel affords a final opportunity for the administration to try to salvage the House-passed parts of the Carter plan that have been defeated in the Senate.

In other action this week, Congress is expected to send the President legislation to boost the minimum wage to $3.35 by 1981.

The saccharin ban postponement would allow time for new studies on whether the artificial sweetener poses a cancer risk to humans. It has been linked to bladder cancer in laboratory animals.

The Senate has already approved the 18-month moratorium and has voted to require that saccharin products carry cancer warnings like those on cigarette packs — a provision not contained in the bill before the House.

Public hearings begin Wednesday in the House ethics committee's investigation of alleged South Korean influence-buying attempts in Congress. Former South Korean intelligence and embassy officers are slated to testify through Friday.

The House will debate legislation to increase the percentage of oil imports carried by U.S. flag tankers and a major proposed revision of the Social Security program that would boost payments by high-paid workers and their employers.

The Senate, which has a light schedule for the week, may debate legislation increasing educational benefits for veterans 6.6 per cent and take final action on legislation outlawing the use of children in pornography.

Somalia, Vietnam and South Yemen were the three countries named by the hijackers as destinations for the imprisoned terrorists whose freedom they demanded. But the West German government said all three refused to accept the prisoners if they were freed.

The 11 West German terrorists whose freedom the hijackers demanded were the same group demanded by the German terrorists of the Red Army Faction who kidnaped Schleyer in Cologne Sept. 5. Cleveland Schools Will Close Friday

CLEVELAND (AP) — State School Supt. Franklin B. Walter said he will authorize Cleveland schools to close on Friday if the week passes without the legislature rescuing the district from financial problems.

Ohio's largest school district ran out of 1977 operating funds on Oct. 14. While the district awaits legislative aid, employees agreed to work this week without knowing when they'll get paid.

Beginning Wednesday, the General Assembly will review a special bill that would allow Cleveland to borrow $19 million to see it through the year. The Senate will review the matter Wednesday and the House is expected to vote on the measure on Thursday. The funds would have to be paid back by June 30 and some opposition to the plan may develop from areas where schools are similarly in danger of running out of funds before the Christmas recess. Eighteen Ohio districts share that predicament.

Before being allowed to close — if the legislature fails to approve the borrowing — the 113,000-student district must get approval from U.S. District Court Judge Frank J. Battisti. On April 1, the judge enjoined officials from closing any school without his permission as part of his desegregation order.

State Auditor Thomas Ferguson has certified that Cleveland schools would be $19.1 million in debt if they remain open the rest of 1977. Ohio law forbids school districts from deficit spending.

School officials say a similar indebtedness will be avoided next year because the system expects to get $4.5 million to $10 million owed by the Penn Central Transportation Co. It also will get $10 million from the state. About $6 million in cuts already have been made, officials say.

The district is not asking for a levy to solve its problems this year but school board president Arnold R. Pinkney says if expected revenue does not come through "we have no choice but to put a levy on the ballot."

Rubber Boss Will Run Again

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — United Rubber Workers President Peter Bommarito, who led the union through one of the most grueling strikes in history, will seek another term as its leader.

Bommarito said he will run for a sixth and final term as president at the union's triennial convention in October 1978.

He said he would like to make a "final contribution" to the union by leading another round of contract negotiations with the Big Four rubber producers in 1979.

He took on the Big Four tiremakers — Goodyear, Goodrich, Firestone and Uniroyal rubber companies — simultaneously for the first time in 1976, leading the 180,000-member union through a 141-day, coast-to-coast strike.

He earned a reputation for toughness in the negotiations, holding out for concessions even though the union had used up its strike fund after the first three weeks of the walkout.

The URW's constitution prohibits a member from seeking election after age 65, making the 62-year-old Bommarito eligible for only one more term.

Issues he said will be "of great importance" in the next round of contract talks are job security, pension improvements, and better health and safety conditions.

Other candidates are expected in the presidential contest, but union officials say no one has emerged with a strong following.

Bommarito recently has been pushing for import taxes on rubber footwear, particularly from South Korea.

He predicted that within six months, a "health foundation" would be established by the AFL-CIO to study occupational diseases.

He also said he expects 83-year old AFL-CIO President George Meany to seek re-election in December, unless Meany's health deteriorates.

Bommarito also said that the URW has held merger talks with the Arkon-based International Chemical Workers Union and the Denver-based Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers.

NEW YORK (AP) —The stock market headed lower today, adding to last week's losses amid continuing interest-rate worries.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 2.86 to 818.78 in the first half hour.

Losers took a slight lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said the market was unable to attract much buying interest amid fears that interest rates would continue their recent rise.

Westinghouse Electric, the early volume leader among NYSE issues, dropped ½ to 17.

Gold stocks advanced with the London bullion price crossing the $160 level to its highest point in more than two years.

On Friday the Dow Jones industrial average rose 3.47 to 821.64, reducing its loss for the week to 18.71 points.

But losers slightly outnumbered gainers on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totalled 20.41 million shares, down from 23.87 million on Thursday.

The NYSE's composite index edged up .02 to 51.24.

Drive For Canal Treaty Ratification Stepped Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is stepping up his drive for Senate ratification of the Panama Canal treaty.

Carter set aside time today to meet with a new blue-ribbon committee of business and labor leaders, former military officers and members of past administrations who support the treaty, which is under fire from foreign-policy conservatives.

Members of the group, headed by Averill Harriman, the one-time ambassador to Moscow who has served as a government envoy in many capacities, organized the panel without official White House involvement, one aide said.

But others said the committee grew out of a breakfast for "opinion leaders" held at the White House recently by a task force headed by Hamilton Jordan, a top presidential assistant.

Members of the committee include Gen. Maxwell Taylor, former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; George Ball, former undersecretary of state; AFL-CIO President George Meany; Lady Bird Johnson; former senator and ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge; former Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott; Chairman Irving Shapiro of E.I. du Pont de Nemours & Co.; Chairman Robert Anderson of the Atlantic Richfield Co., and New York lawyer John McCloy.

The meeting followed a busy weekend at the White House.

—The President's church services were disrupted Sunday by protesters against the neutron bomb. Carter told reporters at the White House when he returned from church that he considers the demonstrators "fine young people."

Without revealing whether he will decide against deploying the bomb, Carter said of the protesters: "I agree with their objective in eliminating nuclear weapons." But the President added that he thought the group was "mistaken in trying to disrupt the church services."

—A knowledgeable administration official said Carter got a message from Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan in which Dayan denied characterizing their recent talks as "brutal" and said he found them pleasant and productive.

Israeli Ambassador Simcha Dinitz telephoned Secretary of State Cyrus Vance with the personal message from Dayan and asked that it be brought to Carter's attention, according to the official, who declined to be identified.

Carter said through a spokesman Friday he did not think the talks, held in New York earlier this month, were brutal and denied threatening Israel with isolation if it did not agree on preparations for Middle East peace talks.

—The White House made public on Saturday a Carter interview with newspaper editors and broadcast news directors during which the President said he is almost overwhelmed by all the things he is doing at once.

But Carter said during the session, which took place Friday at the White House, that he will not drop any initiatives because "I don't think it is in the best interests of the American people."

Carter has slipped below 50 per cent for the first time this month in his public approval rating.

Consumers Affairs Aide Believes In Independent Agency

WASHINGTON (AP) — Esther Peterson says she is convinced that the drive for an independent consumer protection agency will succeed, despite recent setbacks. "I'm not going to say when," she adds, "but I certainly think in this Congress that decisions will be made."

Mrs. Peterson is President Carter's special assistant for consumer affairs. Her mission, she explained in a recent interview, "is ... to help get this bill (establishing a consumer agency) through Congress."

That job is proving more difficult than most people expected earlier in the year. Both houses of Congress passed similar bills last year, but, in the face of a threatened veto by President Ford, failed to produce compromise legislation.

With Carter's support, backers of the concept predicted victory in 1977. They now concede they would lose if the issue came to a vote today. Mrs. Peterson said the reason for the problem is twofold.

"Number one, it was a very safe vote for people in the other administration because many people who voted for it knew that the president would veto it ... and a lot of those people changed when it became a reality." They changed, she said, "because of the second reason, which is the extremely strong opposition that has come from (part of) the business community..."

She believes the trend will turn around before the end of 1978. She said there is a growing realization in government that the consumer's voice is important and a growing realization in business that consumerism can be profitable.

Comparing the consumer movement to the drives for organized labor, civil rights and women, Mrs. Peterson said, "My feeling now is the consumer movement is the next of the popular movements ... People who say that the consumer movement is on its way down, I think, are missing the signs on the wall. I think it's quite the opposite. I think we're just beginning to surface ... Change takes time. You have to have patience."

Mrs. Peterson, 70, has plenty of experience in change and time: A native of Provo, Utah, she has been in Washington since the late 1930s. She was assistant director of education for the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, served as the union's lobbyist, was an assistant secretary of labor under President Kennedy and was vice chairman of the President's Commission on the Status of Women.

When, in 1964, President Johnson created the post of special adviser for consumer affairs, he named Mrs. Peterson to the job. She held the post for three years, later served for seven years as a vice president for consumer affairs of Giant Foods in Washington and, in April, was back in her old job at the appointment of Carter.

Leaving back in a chair in her office in the Old Executive Office Building next to the White House, Mrs. Peterson reflected on the changes that have come in the past 13 years.

Acceptance of consumerism did not come "until we began bringing industry in and showing that there was a commonality of problems and it could be helpful for them to understand."

President Unwilling To Accept Compromise On Energy Legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is unwilling to accept any compromise energy bill that contains any form of natural gas deregulation, the chairman of the Senate energy committee said today.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said that as a result, there may be no natural gas legislation enacted this year.

"The administration is going to be very tough and I'm pleased," Jackson said in an interview.

House and Senate conferees begin work on Tuesday on hammering out a compromise energy bill. Jackson is the head of the Senate's team of conferees.

Although the House has passed Carter's plan to lift the price lid on natural gas from $1.46 to $1.75 per thousand cubic feet and to extend controls to gas produced and used in the same state, the Senate has voted to lift controls from gas after two years.

"The administration holds all the cards," Jackson said. "Either there is no bill and the price remains at $1.46 or if there's a bill with deregulation, the President will veto it."

And Jackson said the administration has indicated it would prefer no bill at all to the Senate-passed measure.

Jackson had offered a "compromise" on the Senate floor during the natural gas debate that would deregulate gas prices after nine years. It was reluctantly supported by the administration at the time as preferable to the industry-backed deregulation bill that the Senate went on to pass.

Jackson's proposed compromise had been viewed as a possible middle ground for the House-Senate conferees to adopt. But Jackson said today that even this phased form of deregulation would probably be vetoed by the President.

He said he doesn't intend to even bring it up again.

The natural gas issue will be the last item the conferees consider so that if they remain deadlocked, it won't jeopardize other parts of the President's energy program, Jackson said.

Jackson said that he will work to get the conferees to approve natural gas legislation that the President will sign.

But he said at this point, no breakthrough appears in the making. The entire natural gas portion of the President's energy program may have to be bypassed this year, he added.

The conference committee will begin its work with the non-tax portions of the energy program.

industrialist Hanns Martin Schleyer also sent word that they would kill him if the hijackers' demands were not met by Sunday afternoon. There was no indication today whether Schleyer had been killed.

West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt continued to meet with his team of crisis advisers today. A spokesman said earlier the government was pursuing "all realistic possibilities" to free the hostages. The Turkish government said it would not consider freeing the two Palestinians unless West Germany released its 11 prisoners.

The Lufthansa Boeing 737 jetliner was hijacked on a flight from Majorca to West Germany on Thursday by two Arabic-speaking men and two women armed with pistols and plastic explosives.

The 82 passengers included an American woman with heart trouble, Christine Maria Santiago, 44, of Santee, Calif., and her 5-year-old son, Leo. Another son reported that the State Department appealed for her release because of her health, but the hijackers refused after finding a two-day supply of heart medicine in her purse.

The plane's stop in Mogadishu was its sixth, after Rome, Nicosia, Bahrain, Dubai and Aden, the capital of South Yemen.

Insurance Covers Damage By Mice

METZ, France (AP) — An insurance company has been ordered to pay a $1,200 claim for damage to a car caused by a mouse trapped in the car's engine.

According to testimony, mice nesting under the car's hood became trapped by the fanbelt and damaged the auto's cooling system. The award covered the cost of repair work.

Cleveland Schools Will Close Friday

CLEVELAND (AP) — State School Supt. Franklin B. Walter said he will authorize Cleveland schools to close on Friday if the week passes without the legislature rescuing the district from financial problems.

Ohio's largest school district ran out of 1977 operating funds on Oct. 14. While the district awaits legislative aid, employees agreed to work this week without knowing when they'll get paid.

Beginning Wednesday, the General Assembly will review a special bill that would allow Cleveland to borrow $19 million to see it through the year. The Senate will review the matter Wednesday and the House is expected to vote on the measure on Thursday. The funds would have to be paid back by June 30 and some opposition to the plan may develop from areas where schools are similarly in danger of running out of funds before the Christmas recess. Eighteen Ohio districts share that predicament.

Before being allowed to close — if the legislature fails to approve the borrowing — the 113,000-student district must get approval from U.S. District Court Judge Frank J. Battisti. On April 1, the judge enjoined officials from closing any school without his permission as part of his desegregation order.

State Auditor Thomas Ferguson has certified that Cleveland schools would be $19.1 million in debt if they remain open the rest of 1977. Ohio law forbids school districts from deficit spending.

School officials say a similar indebtedness will be avoided next year because the system expects to get $4.5 million to $10 million owed by the Penn Central Transportation Co. It also will get $10 million from the state. About $6 million in cuts already have been made, officials say.

The district is not asking for a levy to solve its problems this year but school board president Arnold R. Pinkney says if expected revenue does not come through "we have no choice but to put a levy on the ballot."

Rubber Boss Will Run Again

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — United Rubber Workers President Peter Bommarito, who led the union through one of the most grueling strikes in history, will seek another term as its leader.

Bommarito said he will run for a sixth and final term as president at the union's triennial convention in October 1978.

Issues he said will be "of great importance" in the next round of contract talks are job security, pension improvements, and better health and safety conditions.

Other candidates are expected in the presidential contest, but union officials say no one has emerged with a strong following.

He also said he expects 83-year old AFL-CIO President George Meany to seek re-election in December, unless Meany's health deteriorates.

Bommarito also said that the URW has held merger talks with the Arkon-based International Chemical Workers Union and the Denver-based Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers.

Tran Duong, director of Vietnam's central bank, was quoted while attending an international economic conference in Washington as saying he believes the United States eventually will pay the $4.75 billion in reconstruction aid suggested in a 1973 letter from former President Nixon.

If his country wants to develop friendlier relations with the U.S., it will have to develop a different diplomatic tune. There is no way the American people will agree to pay billions in reconstruction aid to Hanoi, nor are they in any way obligated to do so.

As Tran Duong and other Hanoi spokesmen know very well, the Nixon offer was made subject to congressional approval and—most importantly—subject to adherence to the 1973 Paris agreement to end the war. That Hanoi's invasion and capture of South Vietnam and other acts negated the ceasefire agreement should be obvious to all but an idiot.

Of course, if Hanoi would like to return to the conditions which existed in Vietnam at the time of the 1973 ceasefire agreement, the topic of postwar reconstruction properly could be resurrected.

Ali's Blessings

By JIM BISHOP

When you dwell for a moment on the interminable love affair Muhammad Ali has been carrying on with himself, it is incredible to learn that he found time for women. Dr. Ferdie Pacheco assures me that Ali almost destroyed his body with three years of unremitting sex.

It is one heck of a body to destroy, and if Ali must bend it out of shape, I don't know of a better way to do it. Dr. Pacheco should know. He has written a book, "Fight Doctor," which recounts the inside story of his years in Cassius Clay's corner.

I know Ferdie. And I believe him. Everyone knows that the heavyweight champion has been married several times and is still paying for those wedding bells. Sometimes, just thinking about it makes him mad enough to fight.

And sometimes, when the tongues of Ali and Howard Cosell duel, I get mad enough to fight. The champ has an indefatigable larynx. He can talk the hind legs off a pigeon.

Dr. Ferdie says that Ali had bad hands for a long time. The doc shot him between the knuckles with novocaine shortly before each battle. This worried the Muslims in Chicago. An hour before the first Frazier fight, the doctor was ready with his needle.

Ali looked downcast. "Well," he said, "the boys from Chicago say no one knows what you are putting in my hands. You're white and you don't get paid, so they may be able to buy you off and then you put some dope in my hands." The result of this friendly showdown was that Dr. Pacheco went on the champ's payroll.

Ferdie has a medical office in a poor section of Miami. He should move out, but he won't. His second quirk is that he is mad about boxing. He has worked in the corner of seven champions. And some washed-up bums. The doctor has never submitted a bill to any of them.

The man who remained at

Muhammad Ali's side through the good days and the bad is Angelo Dundee, easily the best manager of the past two decades. When millions were calling Ali a draft dodger, it was Dundee who soothed his spirits and brought him back up the ladder to fame and, especially, fortune.

The champ may have a more outstanding record in bed than in the ring, but he has never forgiven himself for his lack of education. He hungers to know. He reads slowly and painfully. In a hotel room, he tries to write his thoughts on pads.

His religious feelings are genuine. Almost everything he does is by instinct rather than by rationalization. When he told me, some years ago, that he was "to pretty to be hurt" in the ring, he was serious. At one time his reaction to a thrown punch was so fast that he was an almost impossible target.

Today, time and the layoffs have slowed him. He can be hit. He has been punished for scornful lowering of hands and arms. Frazier rocked him. So did Young. Earnie Shavers might have put him away but he was slow to capitalize on his devastating punches.

Ali is aware that fight fans pay a lot of money to see him destroyed. For him, this is a melancholy situation because the champ wants to be loved. His mental and emotional level may be about age 12.

As Ferdie states, the champ doesn't hold conversations. They are monologues. He fears being caught in a dialogue where he might not understand the question. Instead, he recites his childish jingles, shouts his threats and inundates his admirers with inanities.

He was blessed with a six-million-dollar body and the neurological reflexes of a king cobra. The only boxer I ever saw who could match his automatic grace in the ring was Benny Leonard.

And yet, when the sportswriters compose this rainy-day-what-if columns, I am reminded that I saw four fighters who, in their prime, could catch Muhammad Ali in 15 rounds and kill him.

I saw Jack Dempsey knock out Luis Angel Firpo in two rounds. I saw Joe Louis beaten by Schmeling and saw him come back to put the kraut away in one round. I saw Rocky Marciano, who should hang his left arm in the dressing room, take severe beatings and drop his man with one awkward overhand right.

And Harry Greb. He could beat anyone of any weight and he was never more than a middleweight. Greb could box. Greb could punch. He had to die before they found out he had a glass eye.

Ali has more millions than all of them earned. Unfortunately, he is weak at arithmetic. This keeps him fighting beyond his time . . .

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — In one momentous day President Carter got the steel companies off his back, and then stepped on the toes of that other symbol of industrial might, the nation's oil producers.

And in doing so he sent a shiver through all private enterprise, which has been campaigning for its very life against the mistaken notion that everything it takes in somehow swells the bank accounts of a favored few.

Some $50 billion, he said, would "go into the pockets of the oil companies themselves" if Congress rejected his program to continue regulating oil and gas prices.

But later the President's figures were shown to be quite literally in gross exaggeration. The President, it appears, made the same error so many others also make: He confused gross revenues with net income.

The truth is that petroleum and coal product companies, according to the President's own economic report to Congress this year, took in as profit during 1976 only eight cents or so for every dollar of sales.

Those profits went not to a few but to millions of investors. All the rest of revenues went for salaries, taxes, investment in facilities, transportation and general overhead.

No matter what their feelings about oil, therefore, there is consternation in the business community today because, in total contradiction of their efforts, they have been set apart from the total community. It is "them" against "we the people."

President John F. Kennedy did something of the sort back in 1962

when, after feeling he was double-crossed through a price increase by U.S. Steel chairman Roger Blough, he referred to his father's warning that businessmen are SOB's.

But there is a vast difference between Kennedy and Carter. Kennedy's remark was spontaneous; Carter's was calculated. Kennedy's remark was an eruption of hot emotion; Carter's considered remarks cut like cold steel.

What Carter said was the very thing that businessmen hoped they wouldn't hear from a president. They are fully aware of the impact of a president's remarks. "If he said it, it must be true." Or so some people will say.

The impact, therefore, is difficult to dispel. It is one thing to counter general misimpressions, even though much of the business community feels it is failing to do so, but another to take on a president.

The Business Roundtable, made up of the nation's top corporate chief executives, can advertise in the Reader's Digest for an entire year about the role of profits in creating jobs, and still achieve only limited success.

A few phrases from a president, particularly when the words used are "ripoff" and "profiteering" and "into the pockets" tends to undo all those efforts.

In fact, judging from the advertisements prepared by the Advertising Council and the Business Roundtable, the President was very aware of his choice of words. They are the very ones the ads seek to defuse.

They'll Do It Every Time

No Cookies For Holdup Man

DETROIT (AP) — A would-be bandit walked into an east side bakery with his hand inside his jacket, pulled down the shade on the door and announced: "This is a stickup. I have a gun. Give me all your cookies."

The two women on duty at Stahal Bakery just stared. The "holdup man" was a 12-year-old boy.

According to police, the boy demanded that the women fill a large bag with cookies. They refused.

He then tried to grab a cake. But one of the women grabbed it right back.

The young bandit fled and was apprehended a few minutes later by police, who "gave him a good talking to" before turning him over to his parents Thursday.

The "gun" turned out to be a screwdriver.

Town For Sale

SAN SIMEON, Calif. (AP) — For sale: one Fat Woman, complete with five bungalows, two apartments, gas station, grocery store and cafe.

The town of Gorda, which means Fat Woman in Spanish, is up for grabs. Larry Anderson of Los Angeles, owner of the nine-acre hamlet halfway between Los Angeles and San Francisco, wants $950,000. The town, population 20, was named for a nearby rock with vague feminine contours.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Monday, Oct. 17, the 290th day of 1977. There are 75 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1777, British Gen. John Burgoyne surrendered his forces to the Americans at Saratoga, N.Y., in what was one of the turning points of the American Revolution.

On this date: In 1662, England's King Charles II sold Dunkirk to the French.

In 1813, Napoleon Bonaparte's Confederation of the Rhine was dissolved.

In 1855, the English engineer and factory owner, Henry Bessemer, patented his process for making steel.

In 1933, Dr. Albert Einstein arrived in the United States as a refugee from Nazi Germany.

In 1945, Juan Peron staged a coup in Buenos Aires and became absolute dictator of Argentina.

In 1968, it was announced that Jacqueline Kennedy would marry Greek shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis.

Ten years ago: Gov. Nelson Rockefeller said: "I am not a candidate. I do not intend to be a candidate. I do not want to be president."

Five years ago: President Chung Hee Park declared martial law in South Korea, saying politicians could not be trusted with the national task of unification.

One year ago: Wall posters in China accused Chiang Ching, widow of Mao Tse-tung, of hastening the death of her husband by nagging him in his last weeks.

Today's birthdays: Stuntman Evel Knievel is 38 years old.

Thought for today: Lack of money is the root of all evil — playwright George Bernard Shaw.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I smoke a pipe. I do not inhale any smoke, or at least very little as compared to cigarette smoking which I used to do. I would like to know if cancer is caused by pipe smoking. It makes my tongue irritated in the late afternoon or evening. I don't know if this is because of the heat of the burning tobacco or the tobacco juices themselves.

Mr. F.W.A., Ore.

Dear Mr. A.:

Unlike many people who have shifted from cigarette smoking to pipe smoking, you wisely question the ultimate possibility of trouble. Far too many people who are delighted with the fact that they have given up cigarettes completely overlook the very real hazard of pipe smoking.

Irritation caused by hot smoke is known to produce little white patches, or "leukoplakia," in the delicate lining of the mouth. Sometimes these can degenerate and develop malignant characteristics.

Even those people who think they do not inhale their pipe or cigar smoke do, in reality, inhale a surprising amount of smoke into their lungs.

Remember that when you keep puffing that pipe you are surrounding yourself on the outside with a layer of thick smoke which ultimately will, at least in part, find its way back into your lungs. Incidentally, smokers must not forget that the pall of smoke that surrounds them also surrounds the innocent non-smokers near them who must pay a penalty for someone else's habit.

The irritation of your tongue in the evening is simply due to the fact that you have been burning your tongue all day with hot smoke. The heat of burning tobacco, tobacco juices, nicotine and tars all play havoc with the delicate unprotected linings of the mouth and the lungs.

Undoubtedly, cigarette smoking is the chief offender. But don't overlook the fact that neither pipe nor cigar smoking can be exonerated as a possible cause of trouble in the bronchial tubes, the lung and the circulatory system.

My mother-in-law has a cancer of the liver and is being treated with experimental drugs. Is there any way that a liver transplant can help a cancer patient?

Mrs. J.N., Ind.

Dear Mrs. N.:

Transplants of the liver are being done but are still in an early phase. Reports in the scientific journals show evidence of the fact that this is an accepted possibility. At the present time, however, such operations are still comparatively rare.

The surgeons and doctors who are treating your mother-in-law with chemotherapy undoubtedly have given consideration to a liver transplant. If they felt this would be advantageous to her they would have suggested it.

There was a time when it was impossible to believe that kidneys and hearts could be transplanted. Yet this dream became a practical reality. So it is with our hopes for the eventual transplantation of the liver, for cancer and cirrhosis. Such amazing accomplishments are the end results of the dedication and brilliance of research scientists, physicians and surgeons.

The Caspian Sea in the Soviet Union, actually a huge lake, is about 143,000 square miles in area with a maximum depth of more than 3,000 feet.

It is one heck of a body to destroy, and if Ali must bend it out of shape, I don't know of a better way ad nauseum. Dr. Pacheco should know. He has written a book, "Fight Doctor," which recounts the inside story of his years in Cassius Clay's corner.

I know Ferdie. And I believe him. Everyone knows that the heavyweight champion has been married several times and is still paying for those wedding bells. Sometimes, just thinking about it makes him mad enough to fight.

And sometimes, when the tongues of Ali and Howard Cosell duel, I get mad enough to fight. The champ has an indefatigable larynx. He can talk the hind legs off a pigeon.

Dr. Ferdie says that Ali had bad hands for a long time. The doc shot him between the knuckles with novocaine shortly before each battle. This worried the Muslims in Chicago. An hour before the first Frazier fight, the doctor was ready with his needle.

Ali looked downcast. "Well," he said, "the boys from Chicago say no one knows what you are putting in my hands. You're white and you don't get paid, so they may be able to buy you off and then you put some dope in my hands." The result of this friendly showdown was that Dr. Pacheco went on the champ's payroll.

Ferdie has a medical office in a poor section of Miami. He should move out, but he won't. His second quirk is that he is mad about boxing. He has worked in the corner of seven champions. And some washed-up bums. The doctor has never submitted a bill to any of them. The man who remained at Muhammad Ali's side through the good days and the bad is Angelo Dundee, easily the best manager of the past two decades. When millions were calling Ali a draft dodger, it was Dundee who soothed his spirits and brought him back up the ladder to fame and especially fortune.

The champ may have a more outstanding record in bed than in the ring, but he has never forgiven himself for his lack of education. He hungers to know. He reads slowly and painfully. In a hotel room, he tries to write his thoughts on pads.

His religious feelings are genuine. Almost everything he does is by instinct rather than by rationalization. When he told me, some years ago, that he was "too pretty to be hurt" in the ring, he was serious. At one time his reaction to a thrown punch was so fast that he was an almost impossible target.

Today, time and the layoffs have slowed him. He can be hit. He has been punished for scornful lowering of hands and arms. Frazier rocked him. So did Young. Earnie Shavers might have put him away but he was slow to capitalize on his devastating punches.

Ali is aware that fight fans pay a lot of money to see him destroyed. For him, this is a melancholy situation because the champ wants to be loved. His mental and emotional level may be about age 12.

As Ferdie states, the champ doesn't hold conversations. They are monologues. He fears being caught in a dialogue where he might not understand the question. Instead, he recites his childish jingles, shouts his threats and inundates his admirers with inanities.

He was blessed with a six-million-dollar body and the neurological reflexes of a king cobra. The only boxer I ever saw who could match his automatic grace in the ring was Benny Leonard.

And yet, when the sportswriters compose this rainy-day-what-if columns, I am reminded that I saw four fighters who, in their prime, could catch Muhammad Ali in 15 rounds and kill him.

I saw Jack Dempsey knock out Luis Angel Firpo in two rounds. I saw Joe Louis beaten by Schmeling and saw him come back to put the kraut away in one round. I saw Rocky Marciano, who should hang his left arm in the dressing room, take severe beatings and drop his man with one awkward overhand right.

And Harry Greb. He could beat anyone of any weight and he was never more than a middleweight. Greb could box. Greb could punch. He had to die before they found out he had a glass eye.

Ali has more millions than all of them earned. Unfortunately, he is weak at arithmetic. This keeps him fighting beyond his time...

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — In one momentous day President Carter got the steel companies off his back, and then stepped on the toes of that other symbol of industrial might, the nation's oil producers.

And in doing so he sent a shiver through all private enterprise, which has been campaigning for its very life against the mistaken notion that everything it takes in somehow swells the bank accounts of a favored few.

Some $50 billion, he said, would "go into the pockets of the oil companies themselves" if Congress rejected his program to continue regulating oil and gas prices.

But later the President's figures were shown to be quite literally in gross exaggeration. The President, it appears, made the same error so many others also make: He confused gross revenues with net income.

The truth is that petroleum and coal product companies, according to the President's own economic report to Congress this year, took in as profit during 1976 only eight cents or so for every dollar of sales.

Those profits went not to a few but to millions of investors. All the rest of revenues went for salaries, taxes, investment in facilities, transportation and general overhead.

No matter what their feelings about oil, therefore, there is consternation in the business community today because, in total contradiction of their efforts, they have been set apart from the total community. It is "them" against "we the people."

President John F. Kennedy did something of the sort back in 1962

when, after feeling he was double-crossed through a price increase by U.S. Steel chairman Roger Blough, he referred to his father's warning that businessmen are SOBs.

But there is a vast difference between Kennedy and Carter. Kennedy's remark was spontaneous; Carter's was calculated. Kennedy's remark was an eruption of hot emotion; Carter's considered remarks cut like cold steel.

What Carter said was the very thing that businessmen hoped they wouldn't hear from a president. They are fully aware of the impact of a president's remarks. "If he said it, it must be true." Or so some people will say.

The impact, therefore, is difficult to dispel. It is one thing to counter general misimpressions, even though much of the business community feels it is failing to do so, but another to take on a president.

The Business Roundtable, made up of the nation's top corporate chief executives, can advertise in the Reader's Digest for an entire year about the role of profits in creating jobs, and still achieve only limited success.

A few phrases from a president, particularly when the words used are "ripoff" and "profiteering" and "into the pockets" tends to undo all those efforts.

In fact, judging from the advertisements prepared by the Advertising Council and the Business Roundtable, the President was very aware of his choice of words. They are the very ones the ads seek to defuse.

No Cookies For Holdup Man

DETROIT (AP) — A would-be bandit walked into an east side bakery with his hand inside his jacket, pulled down the shade on the door and announced: "This is a stickup. I have a gun. Give me all your cookies."

The two women on duty at Stahl Bakery just stared. The "hold-up man" was a 12-year-old boy.

According to police, the boy demanded that the women fill a large bag with cookies. They refused.

He then tried to grab a cake. But one of the women grabbed it right back.

The young bandit fled and was apprehended a few minutes later by police, who "gave him a good talking to" before turning him over to his parents Thursday.

The "gun" turned out to be a screwdriver.

Town For Sale

SAN SIMEON, Calif. (AP) — For sale: one Fat Woman, complete with five bungalows, two apartments, gas station, grocery store and cafe.

The town of Gorda, which means Fat Woman in Spanish, is up for grabs. Larry Anderson of Los Angeles, owner of the nine-acre hamlet halfway between Los Angeles and San Francisco, wants $950,000. The town, population 20, was named for a nearby rock with vague feminine contours.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I smoke a pipe. I do not inhale any smoke, or at least very little as compared to cigarette smoking which I used to do. I would like to know if cancer is caused by pipe smoking. It makes my tongue irritated in the late afternoon or evening. I don't know if this is because of the heat of the burning tobacco or the tobacco juices themselves.

The delicate unprotected linings of the mouth and the lungs. Undoubtedly, cigarette smoking is the chief offender. But don't overlook the fact that neither pipe nor cigar smoking can be exonerated as a possible cause of trouble in the bronchial tubes, the lung and the circulatory system.

Dear Mr. A.: Unlike many people who have shifted from cigarette smoking to pipe smoking, you wisely question the ultimate possibility of trouble. Far too many people who are delighted with the fact that they have given up cigarettes completely overlook the very real hazard of pipe smoking.

Irritation caused by hot smoke is known to produce little white patches, or "leukoplakia," in the delicate lining of the mouth. Sometimes these can degenerate and develop malignant characteristics.

Even those people who think they do not inhale their pipe or cigar smoke do, in reality, inhale a surprising amount of smoke into their lungs.

Remember that when you keep puffing that pipe you are surrounding yourself on the outside with a layer of thick smoke which ultimately will, at least in part, find its way back into your lungs. Incidentally, smokers must not forget that the pall of smoke that surrounds them also surrounds the innocent non-smokers near them who must pay a penalty for someone else's habit.

The irritation of your tongue in the evening is simply due to the fact that you have been burning your tongue all day with hot smoke. The heat of burning tobacco, tobacco juices, nicotine and tars all play havoc with

My mother-in-law has a cancer of the liver and is being treated with experimental drugs. Is there any way that a liver transplant can help a cancer patient?

Mrs. J.N., Ind.

Dear Mrs. N.: Transplants of the liver are being done but are still in an early phase. Reports in the scientific journals show evidence of the fact that this is an accepted possibility. At the present time, however, such operations are still comparatively rare.

The surgeons and doctors who are treating your mother-in-law with chemotherapy undoubtedly have given consideration to a liver transplant. If they felt this would be advantageous to her they would have suggested it.

There was a time when it was impossible to believe that kidneys and hearts could be transplanted. Yet this dream became a practical reality. So it is with our hopes for the eventual transplantation of the liver, for cancer and cirrhosis. Such amazing accomplishments are the end results of the dedication and brilliance of research scientists, physicians and surgeons.

Issue 1 Seeks Repeal Of Election Day Registration

EDITORS: The following is the first of four Ohio Perspectives dealing with issues on the Nov. 8 ballot.

By ROBERT E. MILLER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Issue 1 on Ohio's Nov. 8 ballot seeks to repeal a 1977 enactment of the state legislature which allows election day registration of voters and makes registration permanent.

The ballot proposition could be confusing, but a voter should remember:

If, after considering arguments on both sides, you feel so-called "instant registration" is wrong for Ohio, you should vote "yes" on Issue 1.

On the other hand, if you wish to endorse the new law, a "no" vote will be required.

Following is the official ballot explanation of Issue 1:

"To provide that a person is entitled to vote at all elections if he has been registered to vote for 30 days and has the other qualifications of an elector, and to provide that a person who is registered and fails to vote in at least one election during any period of four consecutive years must register to vote again before being entitled to vote."

Adoption of Issue 1, essentially, would return Ohio's law to what it was prior to May 31, 1977, when the instant registration became effective. However, the old law stated that a voter's registration would be canceled after he failed to vote for two calendar years, instead of four, as provided in Issue 1.

Rejection of Issue 1 would retain the registration procedures allowed by the instant registration law — specifically that a vote can sign up in advance, by mail and in other ways, up to 21 days prior to the election (Oct. 18 in the case of the current election), or register at the polls after producing a valid Ohio driver's license, a state nondriver identification card, or a voucher from a properly registered voter in the same precinct.

Issue 1 emerged from a statewide petition drive by a group known as "Ohioans for the Preservation of Honest Elections." It acted after approval of instant registration by a Democratic legislature which overrode GOP Gov. James A. Rhodes' veto of the instant registration provision of a broader voter reform bill.

The battle to defeat Issue 1 is being coordinated by a coalition of organizations calling itself the "Citizens to Save the Right to Vote." It was formed after the "honest elections" group lost an Ohio Supreme Court battle challenging procedures used in passage of the instant registration law.

LEGAL NOTICE In the Court of Common Pleas, Pickaway County, Ohio

Case No. 77-CI-342
Bruce Allen Mulkey whose last known address is 2403 Koebel Road, Columbus, Ohio, otherwise whose place of residence is unknown and cannot by reasonable diligence be ascertained, will take notice that on the 11 day of August 1977, the plaintiff Kimberly Sue Mulkey filed her Complaint against you in the Court of Common Pleas of Pickaway County, Ohio, the same being Case No. 77-CI-342 in said Court, praying therein for a divorce from the defendant on the grounds of Gross Neglect of Duty and Extreme Cruelty. Plaintiff further says that the parties have lived separate and apart for a period in excess of two years.

Plaintiff demands that she be restored to her maiden name of Riffle, and that she be granted such other relief as is just and equitable.

Said cause will be heard on the 13th day of December, 1977, or as soon thereafter as meets the convenience of the Court.

but went on to get more than 400,000 signatures to put repeal on the statewide ballot.

Following are summaries of arguments prepared for publication, first from the affirmative side (seeking repeal), then from the opposition (favoring instant registration).

Arthur L. Peterson, director of the "honest elections" group, chairman of politics and government at Ohio Wesleyan University, makes these arguments:

"Election day registration and orderly administration of elections is virtually impossible."

He said Wisconsin and Minnesota, where instant registration is the law, have had elections which "were chaotic, with great lines of irate voters waiting two and three hours to vote."

"The cost of election day registration is an added and needless burden to the taxpayers."

Peterson said although Ohio's legislature appropriated $2.3 million to defray costs "this amount will not meet all the expenses for the biennium...expenses above funds provided by the state will have to be paid by counties."

"Election day registration substantially increases the potential for vote fraud and error..."

"There were substantial number of cases of alleged fraud in both Wisconsin and Minnesota...in Milwaukee, six months after the election, no rigorous attempt had been made to verify the legality of over 2,800 election day registrants about whom there was some question..."

"Honest election error, such as a person unintentionally registering and voting in the wrong precinct, can obviously change the results in a close, local election..."

State Sen. Tony P. Hall, D-6 Dayton, prepared arguments against repeal, of which the following remarks are excerpts:

"Ohioans should oppose Issue 1, choosing a system that provides open elections as opposed to a closed system in which the right to vote is sacrificed for election officials' convenience."

If Issue 1 is adopted, Ohio will have in its constitution "special barriers against the poor, mothers, our working men and women, senior citizens, the handicapped, and all those who cannot easily travel to some central registration before election day."

Opponents of Issue 1 "want to create administrative barriers to prevent hundreds of thousands of Ohioans from voting...voter fraud is not really an issue here. Fraud has always been used as a smoke screen...even the Republican Cuyahoga County Chairman, Robert Hughes, admitted that claims of 'fraud' are 'pure baloney.'"

Ohio's new registration laws "contain the toughest anti-fraud provisions in the state's history. Under the new law, for the first time, voters must show positive identification when registering..."

"If we are concerned about the honesty of our elections, we should focus our attention on those who administer our elections...all the evidence points out that elections are not stolen in the voting booth rather, they are stolen by dishonest election officials..."

In the states where instant registration is permitted (Minnesota and Wisconsin), the FBI investigated fraud allegations "and special prosecutors (even the Republican Party) and no evidence of fraud has been uncovered..."

Barbara quit her job as a bookkeeper because she was "fed up" with the manager of the office. Then she put in a claim for unemployment compensation. However, the company opposed her claim on the ground that she had not been fired.

"It's true that I left on my own initiative," Barbara conceded in a court hearing, "but I had no choice. That office manager had been giving me the silent treatment for a week, all because of a misunderstanding. I found his attitude unbearable."

But the court decided she could not collect compensation. The court said most employees would be able to cope with this kind of aggravation without going so far as to quit.

Barbara did have a point. Unemployment compensation laws usually cover not only those who are fired but also those who quit for "good cause." But to amount to "good cause," the provocation must be pretty severe. In another case a shipping clerk quit because he resented the supervisor's habit of yelling at him. However, it turned out that the supervisor yelled with equal gusto at other employees.

Rejecting the man's compensation claim, the court said:

"Every (employee) has some special gripe, grudge or grievance which could be pumped up into a cause if desired. The possibilities stagger the imagination. The average employee has, or should have, a modicum of tolerance to bear these matters."

But in a third case the provocation was more acute. Here the boss not only yelled at a stenographer but also accused her—falsely—of not doing her fair share of the work.

With insult thus added to injury, a court concluded that she did indeed have good cause for quitting and was therefore entitled to the compensation she had asked for.

Karen Kay Binns Bride Of Stephen Michael Allen

MR. AND MRS. STEPHEN MICHAEL ALLEN

The Emanuel United Methodist Church was the setting for the 3:30 p.m., September 24 wedding of Miss Karen Kay Binns and Mr. Stephen Michael Allen.

The Rev. Howard Pettit performed the double ring service for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Binns Jr., 22455 Bolender Pontious Road, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Allen, 424 Northridge Road.

A program of nuptial selections was presented by organist Mr. Donald Metzler. Vocalist was Mr. Roger Allen.

The bride was given in marriage by her mother and father. She selected a formal length gown of white qiana knit. The gown featured long fitted sleeves and a Queen Anne neckline trimmed with bands of wide Swiss lace. The gown featured a fitted bodice and flowed into a flowing train. Her veil of silk illusion was held in place by a mantilla headpiece trimmed with pearls and Swiss lace. The bridal bouquet of fall flowers was accented with baby's breath and tucks of white velvet ribbon.

Miss Karen Adams served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. John Arnold and Mrs. Richard Stacy both sisters of the bride and Miss Angie Allen, sister of the bridegroom.

Miss Stacy Ater served as flower girl. Master Timothy Boyer served as ring bearer for the bridal pair.

Mr. Brad Allen performed the duties of best man for his brother. Ushers were Mr. Richard Stacy, Mr. John Schuyler Arnold and Mr. Dale Davis.

A reception was held in the Good Shepherd United Methodist Church Service Center. The three tiered wedding cake was topped with a cupid and was encircled with fall flowers and greenery. Silver and crystal candle sticks with yellow tapers completed the decorations.

Hostesses were Mrs. Darrel Dumm, Mrs. Melvin Boyer and Miss Mona Shires.

The bride is a 1975 graduate of Logan Elm High School.

The bridegroom is a 1973 graduate of Circleville High School and a 1977 graduate of Ohio State University. He is employed by the General Electric major appliance plant in Louisville, Kentucky.

Honored guests at the wedding were Mrs. Thomas Boyer Sr., grandmother of the bride and Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Roby Sr., grandparents of the bridegroom.

Prior to the wedding Miss Binns was guest of honor at showers given by Mrs. Ruth George, Mrs. Donald Metzler, Karen Adams, Debbie Wiseman and the bookkeepers of the Savings Bank.

The couple will reside at 6312 Fern Valley Way, Apt. 15; Louisville, Kentucky.

Order Of Eastern Star Holds October Meeting

The annual meeting of Circleville Chapter 90, Order of the Eastern Star, was held Tuesday night in the Masonic Temple. In keeping with the occasion, "A New Beginning" was read by Clarence Radcliffe, worthy patron.

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. government files contain allegations of drug trafficking by Panama's leader, Gen. Omar Torrijos. But the head of the Drug Enforcement Administration says the accusations, "most of them hearsay," cannot be confirmed.

DEA Director Peter Bensinger told reporters Friday his agency is not investigating Torrijos or his family, members of which are named in numerous confidential files on illicit drug trade. He said the files include allegations made in 1971 and 1972.

"We get a lot of reports on a lot of people and a lot of places in the world. This information cannot be characterized in a fashion I would represent as conclusive in any way regarding Omar Torrijos," Bensinger said.

The DEA chief was asked about the drug charges after Torrijos and President Carter met for 90 minutes Friday in an attempt to clarify Panama's position on U.S. rights to defend the canal and the rights of American warships to receive priority access.

But as Carter attempted to defuse the controversy over canal defenses, the drug allegations surrounding the Torrijos family showed signs of becoming a new rallying point for treaty opponents.

The Justice Department acknowledged on Thursday that Omar Torrijos' brother, Moises, who is Panama's ambassador to Spain, had been indicted for drug trafficking in New York five years ago.

Then Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., a leading opponent of the treaty, said the DEA should turn over to the Senate any files pertaining to Torrijos and possible illicit drug trafficking.

Dole earlier had triggered the debate over U.S. access and intervention rights by leaking a secret State Department cable that indicated the Panamanian and U.S. governments interpreted the defense section of the canal treaty differently.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., joined Dole in pursuing the drug allegations. He asked Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell to explain what steps have been taken to find out about Torrijos' activities, calling them a "crucial" issue for the American people.

He also asked Bell to explain a 1975 DEA internal memo quoting a "confidential source" as saying Ramiro Rivas, owner of a Panamanian cement plant, claimed to be a drug traffic partner of Omar Torrijos, using a $750,000 Miami bank account.

According to the report, Rivas said Panamanian planes were used to fly drugs — apparently cocaine and marijuana — from Cuba, Peru and Colombia to Panama, from where they were shipped to the United States.

The DEA refused to comment on any of this.

To Wage War, You Need An Enemy

The Circleville Herald, Monday October 17, 1977

WASHINGTON (AP) — In order to wage the moral equivalent of war, you need the moral equivalent of an enemy. Without villains, there's no way to keep score.

So President Carter has fixed his sights for the new phase of his energy campaign, zeroing in on the oil industry he accuses of plotting history's biggest ripoff.

The issue may not be quite that simple, and the tactic may not gain congressional approval of the legislation he wants. But at least it will be more colorful now that he's settled on somebody to campaign against.

Rose Bowl Game Never On Sunday

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for letting your readers know that next year the Rose Bowl game will be played on Jan. 2. Since your column appeared, we've received countless calls asking for "verification."

The "Never On Sunday" tradition in Pasadena dates back to 1883, when tournament officials were first faced with the problem of disrupting church services with a parade. Next year will mark the 13th time our festival has been held on January 2 instead of on New Year's Day.

Perhaps your readers would like to know that the Rose Bowl game will be played on January 2 again in 1984, 1989, and 1995.

FOREST W. FOSTER,
PASADENA DIRECTOR OF PUBLIC RELATIONS, TOURNAMENT OF ROSES ASSN.

DEAR FOREST: Thanks. The information will be helpful to those who wish to plan ahead.

DEAR ABBY: A woman wrote to say that her girlfriend never shaved her armpits or used a deodorant, and you suggested that the girl be told (nicely) that she offended. Why?

A simply anonymous note would solve the problem, and at the same time avoid embarrassment. We used this system in the government office where I work, and it was very effective.

L.

DEAR L: Effective perhaps, but I

"... As is the case in time of war, there is potential war profiteering in the impending energy crisis," Carter said last Thursday. "This could develop with the passing months as the biggest ripoff in history."

He went on to suggest that only the enactment of his energy program will insure the American consumer against robbery by the oil and gas companies. He read them out of the free enterprise system "because prices are not free," but instead influenced by OPEC oil rates and by industry control over the rate of production.

And that was just for openers in a wouldn't advise anyone to do something I wouldn't do. An anonymous note smacks of tackiness.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the woman asking if she could wear a white wedding dress though she had been raped prompted this letter.

I am a rape-crisis counselor. Please make your readers aware that there are rape-crisis centers across the country now. For those in small communities without such centers, there is probably a center in the nearest large city. If there is a crime phone line in the victim's area, they will know where the nearest rape-crisis is.

These centers are staffed with professional counselors as well as volunteers who have the special training in rape-victim counseling. They can offer emotional support and often can accompany the women to seek medical and legal help. Any rape-crisis center I have been in contact with has the highest code of confidentiality and counseling ethics.

After a woman has been humiliated, degraded, overpowered and even beaten, she is often made to believe that it is her fault that the incident occurred. Some carry the scars of their experience for years.

It is important for victims of sexual assault to know that such services are available. Also, it might inspire people in communities without such service to try to get one started.

campaign Carter said will take most of his time during the next few weeks. He'll be pushing his energy plan during a five-state swing later this month. Vice President Walter F. Mondale and Cabinet members are to be deployed to push the administration's energy cause.

The White House plans to summon political and business leaders to a series of energy conferences, hoping that kind of persuasion will put pressure on members of Congress — especially the balky Senate — to vote for the Carter package.

One White House aide said there are more than a few people in policy and imagemaking positions who would like nothing better than to take on the oil industry with tough talk and tougher programs.

They've been cautious so far, lest they get ahead of the President on the issue. Now Carter is ahead of them, speaking more harshly than his speechwriters would have dared propose.

Carter's real problem is in the Senate, which has stripped away the key elements of the energy program the House approved. His energy price and tax proposals are in grave trouble.

Carter used to blame the Senate, suggesting at one point that it was too responsive to lobbyists, and warning that it should look after its own reputation. Then he blamed lobbyists for all the trouble.

But none of that had the political punch of his slap at the industry itself. Furthermore, his challenges to Congress tended to make congressmen angry, which was counterproductive.

So in the new campaign, he speaks kindly of the people who will be voting on his energy bills. According to Carter, even his Senate opponents are working long and hard to come up with an acceptable energy package.

He'll take part of the blame for past failures, and the American people will have to share it because they waste too much energy.

Nor is the whole problem the fault of the oil companies. Just enough of it to make them the prime administration target.

It's all there in the campaign textbook.

Franklin D. Roosevelt denounced the "economic royalists" as he accepted his second presidential nomination. Theodore Roosevelt said that "malefactors of great wealth" were partially responsible for panic on Wall Street 70 years ago.

The candidate who declares in the springtime that he campaigns for his own programs, not against anybody else, often winds up denouncing his opponent in the fall.

When the crunch comes, it helps to have a target. And for Carter the crunch is approaching on energy, the crucial program of his first year and perhaps his first term in the White House.

Company Needed To Take Part In Pollution Tests

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio is looking for another company to take part in a state test of a pollution control system after PPG Industries decided to withdraw from the project, an adviser to Gov. James A. Rhodes says.

The test involves use of fluidized-bed boilers to remove sulfur and nitrogen oxides during combustion.

Prince Charles To Visit Cleveland

CLEVELAND (AP) — Although several women have sent photographs of themselves to the British Consulate with hopes of meeting Prince Charles, the 28-year-old bachelor will stick to a ceremonial schedule when he visits Cleveland Thursday.

Mail received by British Consul General Leslie Reid includes an invitation by a young man, offering to take the prince bowling and have a few beers and perhaps meet a few girls.

Despite the impossibility of such fraternizations, Reid said Clevelanders will have many opportunities to catch a glimpse of Prince Charles.

"People are invited to watch the arrival ceremony (at Burke Lakefront Airport)," Reid said. "There will be a lot of room at the airport and people will get spots on a first come, first serve basis."

Gov. James A. Rhodes and Cleveland Mayor Ralph Perk will be in the welcoming committee.

Cleveland will be the prince's second stop on his 12-city U.S. tour.

The first sight on the Cleveland tour will be Republic Steel Corp. where the prince will observe steelmaking operations and will chat with steelworkers.

He will plant a tree on downtown's Public Square before dedicating the Cleveland State University Marshall Law School and give a short speech on Anglo-American jurisprudence in the school's moot courtroom after lunch.

Other events will include a visit to the Cleveland Clinic Hospital and a dinner with industrial leaders.

During the evening, the prince will attend a concert by the Cleveland Orchestra and a reception. He will spend the night at the 20-room Eaton House, a mansion owned by Eaton Corp.

Friday morning he will leave for St. Louis.

If successful, such boilers could eliminate the need for expensive "scrubbers" to control air pollution from industrial smokestacks.

It's part of a Rhodes' administration attempt to find new methods of burning Ohio's hughesulfur coal and still meet environmental standards.

The fluidized-bed technology was to have been installed by Babcock & Wilcox Ltd., London, at existing boilers at the Central Ohio Psychiatric Hospital here and at PPG's chlorine and caustic soda plant in Barberton.

Babcock & Wilcox has a contract with the Ohio Energy and Resource Development Agency for the work.

But PPG has decided against modification of a boiler at its plant.

The installation would not solve PPG's overall problem with federal restrictions on sulfur dioxide pollutants, according to Leo Paridon, technical manager for the company.

"With the whole plant in jeopardy because of the (U.S.) EPA regulations, we can't justify putting this in at this time," Paridon said.

As a result of the PPG decision, several other companies are being asked to participate in the test, said Robin Turner, a vice president of the North American Coal Co. Turner is an adviser to Rhodes on coal matters.

The boiler would be built using state funds and then would be leased back to the private company or utility on a long-term basis, Turner said.

Ohio officials believe that if the fluidized-bed boilers successfully meet pollution standards, Ohio firms could reduce their imports of low-sulfur coal and stimulate increased production of the state's abundant high-sulfur coal supply.

In addition to the psychiatric hospital and the Barberton plant, the new boilers are being considered for use by the old Ohio Penitentiary in Columbus and the Columbus & Southern Ohio Electric Co.

Nickname Suits Retired Principal

JANESVILLE, Wis. (AP) — They call him "the Chipper Clipper," and the nickname suits Kenneth Bick just fine.

Bick, 73, a retired high school principal, has endeared himself to thousands of Janesville area residents by the cheerful notes and newspaper clippings he sends them.

"I try to send one to anyone who has done something good for someone or contributed something," he says. "It encourages them to contribute something to the community. It makes people feel someone is interested in them."

Bick said he sent clippings to his high school students many years ago and started doing it for the entire community about 15 years ago.

He attaches the clippings — for a birth, anniversary, business promotion, service award or whatever — to printed congratulatory cards and mails them to the newsmaker.

"I get up about six o'clock and get started right away. Before breakfast, I try to get to the post office between 7:30 and 8 o'clock so they will be delivered the same day," he said. He estimated he has mailed out more than 10,000 clippings and cards.

"Sometimes it's less than 20 a day, but it's usually more in the summertime when there are a lot of marriages," Bick said.

"The only real trouble I have," he added, "is that every now and then the government raises the postal rate. It was three cents for a stamp when I started."

The best part of his hobby, he says, is the warm thank-you notes and phone calls he receives and the new friends he makes.

Bick says he still keeps track of three generations of area students and gets invited to all the class reunions.

He often gets two or three reunion invitations per weekend during the summer, he says.

Garbage Man Is A Girl's Best Friend

TINTON FALLS, N.J. (AP) — A garbage collector can be a girl's best friend.

Workers at the Monmouth County Reclamation Center spent more than an hour last week rummaging through garbage before they found a $5,000 diamond ring belonging to Barbara Makris of Ocean Township.

Mrs. Makris called the center after she thought her ring may have been lost in a shopping bag full of trash that had been picked up by a sanitation crew.

Workers sorted through an eight-foot high pile of trash that had just been dumped off the garbage truck before locating the shopping bag with the diamond.

Minimum Wage Started At A Quarter An Hour

WASHINGTON (AP) — It started at a quarter an hour 40 years ago, and now the minimum wage is about to go to $2.65, with economists and politicians still arguing among themselves over its real impact on the job market.

The question that hasn't been answered yet is whether a higher minimum wage is justice or folly; a boon to the working poor or a menace to their jobs.

There is no shortage of studies, dissertations and analyses of that issue. They abound in the fine print of the congressional debate, on both sides.

Given the facts of life at the supermarket, the current minimum wage of $2.30 an hour doesn't add up to much of a living for anybody who makes it and no more. It adds up to $4,784 a year.

Even at the increased rate, the minimum will be lower than the government's poverty line for an urban family of four. The minimum wage earner would get $5,512. In 1978, the poverty level is expected to be about $6,200.

That would seem to make it all very simple: boost the rate and help the low-paid, unskilled worker. But there's more to it, for as the cost of labor goes up, so does the prospect that employers will decide to make do with fewer workers.

Economist Edward M. Gramlich assessed that risk in a paper published by the Brookings Institution:

"As the minimum wage is increased beyond its historical range of 40 to 50 per cent of the median wage, more and more workers confront the grab-bag combination of a higher wage but a reduced probability of having a job."

The younger the worker, the worse it gets. Unemployment in September stood at 6.9 per cent of the labor force — but at 18.1 per cent for teen-agers, and at more than twice that for black teen-agers.

For all their differences on the broader question of minimum wage effects, the economists generally agree that it doesn't help the youthful jobseeker. He's more likely to be unable to find a job, or to lose one, than to get the higher hourly wage.

The liberal Republican Ripon Society likens it to attempts at healing by bloodletting.

"Political Washington is about to administer to young Americans a remedy just as pernicious as medieval bloodletting," the Ripon analysis said. For while the law can raise the wage, it can't raise worker productivity. And if the price of an hour's work exceeds the product, the job isn't likely to last.

By a single vote, the House rejected an amendment that would have set a special wage rate, below the adult minimum, for workers under the age of 20. The Senate rejected four attempts to write in differentials so as to make it easier for young people to get or hold jobs.

Sponsors of the bill argued that there are better ways to generate work for unemployed youths. They also contended that cut rates for young workers would lead some employers to hire them instead of adults.

"It is unjust and discriminatory to assign a value less than the minimum wage to any person's labor," said Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J.

But it is also unjust for somebody who wants to work to be earning nothing at all, for lack of a job.

But those aren't the only issues involved. The minimum wage is a factor in the welfare equation. If welfare pays better than work, the administration's reform package is not going to accomplish much.

The arguments will continue, on those and other points, even though the law is set for at least three years, and perhaps four. The House and the Senate agree that the rate should go to $2.65 an hour next year. The Senate bill would increase it in stages to $3.40 in 1981. The House version would raise the minimum to $3.05 in 1980. Congressional negotiators are working out the differences now.

For the economists, there's never a last word. If there was, it should be assigned to the First National Bank of Chicago, whose economic researchers report:

"Every few years, the United States goes through the ritual of adjusting minimum wage laws. And just as regularly, the business and labor communities engage in exaggerated discussions about either the dire consequences or marvelous benefits that can be expected

"In fact, increases in the minimum wage have typically been quite modest, compared with increases in other wages or prices, and the results have been fairly innocuous."

Personal Freedom Main Reason For Not Having Kids

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Personal freedom topped the reasons why married couples chose to be childless, according to a survey conducted at the University of Akron.

Dr. Margaret M. Poloma, associate professor of sociology at University of Akron and Ellen Mara Nason, a former student, questioned husbands and wives of 30 middle income, mid-western couples whose salaries ranged from $6,000 to $28,000 annually.

Five couples were irrevocably committed to remaining childless, the study showed, because either the husband and/or wife had been sterilized. Eight couples reflected strong commitment, 12 reasonable commitment and five commitment with reservations.

When asked "what if your wife should die," most of the men said that a woman's having children or desiring to have children would not be a reason for them not marrying her," the study said. "With the women, it was a much more personal commitment, and many of the husbands felt it was only appropriate that the woman makes the major decision because it's the woman who gets stuck with the child rearing," the survey said.

"Respondents readily delineated the advantages or benefits of remaining childless, but could not easily and readily delineate the disadvantages or costs," the survey, released this week, reported.

"The factors most often cited were that they might regret the decision when they grew old and the corresponding 'lonely old age,' some social disadvantages (parents associating with other parents because of children's friendships) and the tax structure," the survey reported.

Five advantages of being childless were, in order of importance, personal freedom, monetary advantage, better marital relationship, importance of the wife's career and helping to curb overpopulation.

Although couples interviewed said they were permanently and voluntarily childless, their resolve to maintain that status varied, Dr. Poloma said.

"When asking some probing questions, it became apparent that some of these couples may wind up being parents, perhaps through accident if nothing else," she said.

The research concluded: —Childless couples are less likely to express a religious preference or a strong religious attachment.

—Couples without children are more likely to be oriented to the husband-wife relationship.

—Husbands in childfree couples are less likely to perceive themselves as breadwinners and "main earners" within the family than are fathers.

—Childless couples perceive greater marital satisfaction than do parental couples.

Attorney General To File Suits Against General Motors

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Ohio Atty. Gen. William J. Brown announced Friday he and legal counsel in 22 other states will press lawsuits against General Motors Corp. for its use of Chevrolet motors in other models.

Brown made the announcement at the close of a three-day convention of the National Association of Attorneys General in New Orleans. The state attorneys general claim that GM put Chevrolet motors in Buicks, Oldsmobiles and Pontiacs without telling customers.

Brown said the states would press the lawsuits because the attorneys general offered to settle if GM would pay $500 per car and extend the warranties, but that GM rejected the proposal.

General Motors declined to comment on the case. "Because this matter is in litigation, General Motors has no comment at this time," a GM spokesman said when asked about details of the rejected offer.

The lawsuits seek restitution to customers, injunctions and penalties. About 128,000 Oldsmobiles, Buicks and Pontiacs built in the 1977 model year had Chevy engines because GM said its Oldsmobile engine plant could not keep up with car production.

GM offered to swap the cars with new ones as long as the owners would pay eight cents for each mile driven in the cars with Chevrolet engines. The offer would cost a customer $400 if he drove his Chevy-powered Oldsmobile 5,000 miles.

Brown's statement said that 39 attorneys general made the compromise offer to GM in July. The statement did not say when GM rejected it or why.

"Now that the settlement was not accepted, the meeting assumed the posture of how to proceed," said Winston DeCuir, an assistant Louisiana attorney general. "Each of the states is going to have to proceed on its own."

Also during the convention, Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott coordinated work on a federal class action suit on the same issue that is pending in U.S. District Court in Chicago.

Suits against GM on the motor issue have been filed in Alabama, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Illinois, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Nevada, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Vermont, Virginia and Wisconsin.

The issue began when a Chicago man discovered that a Chevrolet engine was in his 1977 Olds 88 instead of the widely advertised "Rocket" motor.

Nickname Suits Retired Principal

JANESVILLE, Wis. (AP) — They call him "the Chipper Clipper," and the nickname suits Kenneth Bick just fine.

Bick, 73, a retired high school principal, has endeared himself to thousands of Janesville area residents by the cheerful notes and newspaper clippings he sends them.

"I try to send one to anyone who has done something good for someone or contributed something," he says. "It encourages them to contribute something to the community. It makes people feel someone is interested in them."

Bick said he sent clippings to his high school students many years ago and started doing it for the entire community about 15 years ago.

He attaches the clippings — for a birth, anniversary, business promotion, service award or whatever — to printed congratulatory cards and mails them to the newsmaker.

"I get up about six o'clock and get started right away. Before breakfast. I try to get to the post office between 7:30 and 8 o'clock so they will be delivered the same day," he said. He estimated he has mailed out more than 10,000 clippings and cards.

"Sometimes it's less than 20 a day, but it's usually more in the summer when there are a lot of marriages," Bick said.

"The only real trouble I have," he added, "is that every now and then the government raises the postal rate. It was three cents for a stamp when I started."

The best part of his hobby, he says, is the warm thank-you notes and phone calls he receives and the new friends he makes.

Bick says he still keeps track of three generations of area students and gets invited to all the class reunions.

He often gets two or three reunion invitations per weekend during the summer, he says.

"I usually eat with the oldest graduating class first," he says, "and then go party with the younger ones later."

Attorney General To File Suits Against General Motors

State Auditor To Seek Override Of Rhodes Veto

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Auditor Thomas E. Ferguson is expected to ask the Democrat-controlled legislature to override GOP Gov. James A. Rhodes' veto of a bill affecting the auditor's employees.

Rejected by the governor Friday was the measure under which Ferguson could place about 200 examiners and supervisors in the unclassified civil service, letting him hire and fire at will. The 200 workers have not yet attained civil service status.

Rhodes called the legislation "a step backward" and said the civil service system was created "to assure the taxpayers, and those who serve the taxpayers, of efficient and professional service." Rhodes once served as state auditor.

Noting that some of the affected employees, who also include those in the auditor's computer operation, are in sensitive and technical positions, the governor said they "must be free of any possible or potential political influence."

Ferguson could not be reached for comment, but an aide, Fred Knippenburg, predicted an attempt will be made to override the veto.

Knippenburg noted that Rhodes' own top-level employees, along with those of the treasurer and attorney general, serve at the pleasure of their employers.

But he said Ferguson's "main argument" is that the examiners and supervisors are "his surrogates in the field," and said he should have the authority "to remove those people who don't live up to the standards."

Rhodes signed five bills into law late Friday, including one setting landlord-tenant rights for house trailer parks. All have Jan. 13 effective dates.

Sponsored by Rep. A.G. Lancione, D-99 Bellaire, it bars trailer park operators from retaliating against tenants that organize with other tenants, file safety code complaints, or otherwise complain that the landlord is not complying with lawful duties.

The bill permits tenants to deposit their rent with the court if a park operator fails to fulfill his statutory obligations within a reasonable time.

Rhodes approved authorization for township trustees in civil service townships to hire and fire police and fire chiefs as unclassified employees.

Youth Treated For Laceration

A student at Westfall High School was treated at Berger Hospital's Emergency Room for a laceration to his ring finger following a 9:30 p.m. Sunday incident at the school.

According to the report filed at the Pickaway County Sheriff's Office, the youth, along with approximately 25 other students, was rolling paper around Westfall High School, and in the process of climbing from the school's roof, the youth received the laceration.

He was released to the custody of his parents at Berger Hospital.

Theft Attempt Is Unsuccessful

The Pickaway County Sheriff's Office is investigating the attempted theft from coin devices at Porter's "Follow Charlie" car wash on North Court Street. The incident took place at approximately 10 p.m. Sunday.

Paul R. Porter, owner of the business, told Deputy Don Hamilton that the attempt was made on the coin boxes of two car vacuum cleaners. After the unsuccessful attempts, the culprits left the area.

his Cadillac were missing. Value was set at $264.

Gilbert A. Brown, 329 McKell Road, Chillicothe, told Deputy J.R. Fite that someone entered his abandoned residence next to Meade Grocery on Route 159 sometime during the last six months. The person entered the building by crawling through a broken basement window and removed a large number of items. Due to the large amount of tools that Brown has, Fite said, the man didn't miss the items until now.

Brown uses the house to store equipment. No signs of physical evidence was left at the scene. Total value of tools stolen was $484. Tools included four wheels and tires with 10-inch tread, one wrecking bar, one plumb claw hammer, one ball pen hammer, one one-quarter horsepower paint sprayer, one 18-inch rigid pipe wrench, 500 feet of 12-gauge electrical wire, one auto two bar, one set short tow bar with safety chains, 10 gallons of waterproofing paint, one new automobile tail light.

Detective J. Phillip Brown reported today that Archie Reime, 19, Route 3, Mount Sterling, entered Lazy Day

General Store, 12481 SR 56 W., Five Points, and took an undisclosed amount of money from behind the counter and left.

Reime was charged with grand theft by the owner, Frances Duffy, according to Browne.

Lynn Ellen Wagner, Thurman, Ohio was a victim of a grand theft between 8:38 p.m. and 8:50 p.m.

The woman, and David Smith, Gallipolis, were in the Blue Drummer restaurant in the Wacker Shopping District at the time. When they returned to their car they found that items were missing and the glove compartment was open.

According to Deputies Don Hamilton and Leon Sims, the vehicle was entered by unsnapping the canvas top and unlocking the right door. No damage was done to the vehicle.

Stolen items included one lady's purse containing $15, one check book, two credit cards owned by WJEH Radio, Gallipolis, one credit card owned by Paul E. Wagner, father of Lynn, one AAA credit card owned by Wagner, and one red, white and blue metal footlocker containing clothing, a stereo and a head phone.

By The Associated Press
Record low temperatures greeted Ohioans early today.

In Cincinnati, the low of 23 not only broke the record low of 29 set in 1970, but was the coldest temperature on record this early in the fall. The low of 25 on Oct. 11, 1964, was the previous season low.

Other records this morning were 22 in Toledo, 24 in Findlay, 25 in Dayton and 26 in Columbus.

A cloud cover protected the northeastern part of the state, where at daybreak, Cleveland had a 40-degree temperature.

Snow flurries mixed at times with rain fell in northeastern Ohio but only a trace of accumulation was reported. Rain showers fell in southern Ohio, with only fractions of an inch recorded.

High pressure was expected to put an end to all precipitation in the state this afternoon and temperatures were to climb into the upper 40s to the mid 50s.

Another cold front headed toward Ohio does not contain quite as cold air. Lows tonight will be in the mid to upper 30s with highs Tuesday in the 50s.

State Auditor To Seek Override Of Rhodes Veto

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Auditor Thomas E. Ferguson is expected to ask the Democrat-controlled legislature to override GOP Gov. James A. Rhodes' veto of a bill affecting the auditor's employees.

Rejected by the governor Friday was the measure under which Ferguson could place about 200 examiners and supervisors in the unclassified civil service, letting him hire and fire at will. The 200 workers have not yet attained civil service status.

Rhodes called the legislation "a step backward" and said the civil service system was created "to assure the taxpayers, and those who serve the taxpayers, of efficient and professional service." Rhodes once served as state auditor.

Noting that some of the affected employees, who also include those in the auditor's computer operation, are in sensitive and technical positions, the governor said they "must be free of any possible or potential political influence."

Ferguson could not be reached for comment, but an aide, Fred Knippenburg, predicted an attempt will be made to override the veto.

Knippenburg noted that Rhodes' own top-level employees, along with those of the treasurer and attorney general, serve at the pleasure of their employers.

But he said Ferguson's "main argument" is that the examiners and supervisors are "his surrogates in the field," and said he should have the authority "to remove those people who don't live up to the standards."

Rhodes signed five bills into law late Friday, including one setting landlord-tenant rights for house trailer parks. All have Jan. 13 effective dates.

Sponsored by Rep. A.G. Lancione, D-99 Bellaire, it bars trailer park operators from retaliating against tenants that organize with other tenants, file safety code complaints, or otherwise complain that the landlord is not complying with lawful duties.

The bill permits tenants to deposit their rent with the court if a park operator fails to fulfill his statutory obligations within a reasonable time.

Rhodes approved authorization for township trustees in civil service townships to hire and fire police and fire chiefs as unclassified employees.

Youth Treated For Laceration

A student at Westfall High School was treated at Berger Hospital's Emergency Room for a laceration to his ring finger following a 9:30 p.m. Sunday incident at the school.

According to the report filed at the Pickaway County Sheriff's Office, the youth, along with approximately 25 other students, was rolling paper around Westfall High School, and in the process of climbing from the school's roof, the youth received the laceration.

He was released to the custody of his parents at Berger Hospital.

Deputies Investigate 4 Thefts

Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputies investigated four incidents of grand theft Friday.

At 10:09 a.m. Friday, Larry Even McArthur, 10117 Route 62, Orient, reported that he left for work at 2 a.m. Wednesday returning 2:30 p.m. Upon arriving home, he noticed the two wire wheel hub caps on the driver's side of

Theft Attempt Is Unsuccessful

The Pickaway County Sheriff's Office is investigating the attempted theft from coin devices at Porter's "Follow Charlie" car wash on North Court Street. The incident took place at approximately 10 p.m. Sunday.

Paul R. Porter, owner of the business, told Deputy Don Hamilton that the attempt was made on the coin boxes of two car vacuum cleaners. After the unsuccessful attempts, the culprits left the area.

his Cadillac were missing. Value was set at $264.

Gilbert A. Brown, 329 McKell Road, Chillicothe, told Deputy J.R. Fite that someone entered his abandoned residence next to Meade Grocery on Route 159 sometime during the last six months. The person entered the building by crawling through a broken basement window and removed a large number of items. Due to the large amount of tools that Brown has, Fite said, the man didn't miss the items until now.

Brown uses the house to store equipment. No signs of physical evidence was left at the scene. Total value of tools stolen was $484. Tools included four wheels and tires with 10-inch tread, one wrecking bar, one plumb claw hammer, one ball peen hammer, one one-quarter horsepower paint sprayer, one 18-inch rigid pipe wrench, 500 feet of 12-gauge electrical wire, one auto two bar, one set short tow bar with safety chains, 10 gallons of waterproofing paint, one new automobile tail light.

Detective J. Phillip Brown reported today that Archie Reime, 19, Route 3, Mount Sterling, entered Lazy Day

General Store, 12481 SR 56 W., Five Points, and took an undisclosed amount of money from behind the counter and left.

Reime was charged with grand theft by the owner, Frances Duffy, according to Browne.

Lynn Ellen Wagner, Thurman, Ohio was a victim of a grand theft between 8:38 p.m. and 8:50 p.m.

The woman, and David Smith, Gallipolis, were in the Blue Drummer restaurant in the Wacker Shopping District at the time. When they returned to their car they found that items were missing and the glove compartment was open.

According to Deputies Don Hamilton and Leon Sims, the vehicle was entered by unsnapping the canvas top and unlocking the right door. No damage was done to the vehicle.

Sentencing Slated For Irish Slayer

NEWPORT, Ky. (AP) — Sentencing is scheduled Saturday for a 25-year-old Irish immigrant found guilty of murder in the strangulation-dismemberment of his Ft. Thomas, Ky., wife.

Kevin Murtaugh was convicted by a Campbell County Circuit Court jury Saturday after eight hours of deliberations. His attorney called it the area's "most notorious trial" in 50 years.

Murtaugh, who came to America at age 4 after being reared in a convent, was charged with strangling his wife Diane, 22, and later dismembering the body with an electric saw. He faces life imprisonment for the murder conviction.

The former waiter was charged last January after parts of the body were found near a Campbell County park by a hunter.

His lawyers contended Murtaugh was guilty of an atrocity — the dismemberment of a body — but not of murder. They claimed Murtaugh was a schizophrenic who was triggered into the dismemberment by finding his wife dead of a drug overdose. He pleaded innocent to the charges.

The county coroner ruled that the woman died from strangulation.

Man Will Go To Jail

CLEVELAND (AP) — Leroy Crayton Jr. says he wants to lose weight so bad, he's willing to go to jail.

The 250-pounder ambled into the Shaker Heights police station Thursday and asked to be put behind bars, hoping that a two-week incarceration on a jail diet would help trim his 43-inch waist.

"I'm afraid we can't cooperate with you," Municipal Judge Manuel M. Rocker told him. "Maybe you are eating too many Crayton sausages," the Cleveland suburban judge added. Crayton's father operates a sausage company.

"I have tried fasting for short periods of time," the 23-year-old Crayton said, "but I have always given into the temptation for food."

"I'd really like to try this," Crayton mused afterwards, "I admit this is different, but I do not believe they took me seriously."

other benefits on their 1978 wheat crop to reduce plantings from this year. It also requires them to set aside crop land equal to 20 per cent of the acreage planted to wheat next year.

County offices of the department's Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service will have the task of explaining the program fully to wheat farmers and tailoring it to each farm.

The proposal announced Friday calls for a national program acreage base of 58.7 million acres for the 1978 wheat crop. That is not a restriction on how much farmers can grow, but it is the basis for computing how much in federal payments may be due them.

Officials said the 58.7 million acres, allowing an average yield of 30.9 bushels an acre, will provide about 1.8 billion bushels of wheat next year, enough to meet U.S. domestic needs and purchases by overseas customers.

This amount, under the proposal, will form the basis for figuring target price payments for 1978 wheat under the new Food and Agriculture Act signed by President Carter on Sept. 29.

Assuming wheat prices stay at or close to the $2.25 loan level for 1978, a $3 per bushel target price would mean "deficiency payments" from the government to bridge the gap of 75 cents a bushel on that portion of a farmer's wheat crop covered by the plan.

To be eligible for fully guaranteed protection on his wheat, a farmer must do two basic things: reduce his 1978 wheat plantings 20 per cent from 1977 and then set aside land equivalent to 20 per cent of his 1978 wheat crop from further harvest of any commercial crop.

The proposal also said that a "normal crop acreage base" will be set for each farm according to crops raised in 1977. Those designated crops include barley, corn, dry edible beans, flax, oats, rice, rye, sorghum, soybeans, sugarbeets, sugarcane, sunflowers, upland cotton and wheat.

For example, if a farmer had 100 acres of wheat and 100 acres of one or more of the other designated crops, his acreage base would be 200 acres. To be assured of full coverage, he will have to cut his 1978 wheat to 80 acres and set aside additional land equal to 20 per cent of that - 16 acres. Of the remaining 104 acres as proposed, he can plant what he chooses.

The target price payment will be computed on the basis of the farmer's wheat acreage multiplied by his normal yield.

Hustler Article Mailed To 700,000 Homes

CINCINNATI (AP) — Reprints of a Hustler magazine article graphically depicting child abuse have been mailed to 700,000 households around Cincinnati and Atlanta, where the magazine is banned from distribution on grounds it is obscene.

Recipients of the mailout were urged by Hustler publisher Larry Flynt to oust public officials who played a part in banning the publication.

The mailout, which Flynt said cost him $150,000, started showing up around Cincinnati on Saturday, but Atlanta residents weren't likely to get the pamphlet before today, Flynt said about 350,000 copies of the pamphlet

Barberton Councilman Faces Recall Vote

BARBERTON, Ohio (AP) — Barberton Councilman Albert Canfora, who is fighting for his political life because of his involvements in demonstrations at Kent State University, predicts that Tuesday's election for his recall will fail.

The 51-year-old Canfora, who has been a councilman since 1964, says he's optimistic of the voters' confidence in him despite a Summit County Common Pleas Court ruling last week which rejected his challenge to the election.

Canfora contends that 47 of the 227 signatures approved by the elections board were invalid. He said the petitions contain discrepancies and misrepresentations.

But Judge Evan Reed ruled there was "no real proof" of any fraud or impropriety. "It would be impossible at this late date to stop the machinery when the election has been set up," Reed said Wednesday.

The recall petitions were circulated shortly after Canfora, his wife Ann, and their four children, were arrested in a July 12 demonstration against the construction of a gymnasium annex near the site of the 1970 Kent State shootings.

His son, Alan, was one of nine Kent students wounded in the 1970 incident when Ohio National Guardsmen opened fire on antiwar demonstrators. Four students were killed.

Canfora, who faced similar opposition from constituents in 1970, says he was exercising his civil rights.

If the election goes against him, Judge Reed told Canfora that he can challenge the election in court and that the councilman also has the opportunity to run again if another election should be forced by the recall.

went to each of the two cities.

Flynt was to be arraigned today on obscenity charges in state courts in Gwinnett and Fulton counties in Georgia. The charges for distributing obscene materials are in connection with his publication of Hustler.

"In my opinion, photographs of battered children are a lot more obscene than nude photographs," Flynt said Sunday in Atlanta.

The pamphlet, entitled "Child Abuse in America: Slaughter of the Innocents," was a reprint of an article which appeared in the October issue of Hustler.

The pamphlets were similar to those picturing Vietnam war dead and wounded sent to 400,000 Cincinnati residences in November 1976. Flynt said the mailout was to prove that war is more obscene than nudity, which Hustler features regularly.

The antiwar mailout resulted in charges being filed against Flynt for distributing material harmful to minors. The charges are pending. Flynt said he doubted the child abuse pamphlet would be construed as obscene.

"The idea behind the mailout is simple. The magazine doesn't have distribution in these two cities, and everyone should have been able to see it."

"Secondly, the prosecutors in these two cities have a crusade to prevent distribution of Hustler. Well, I have a crusade, too. I want to see both of them out of office."

The pamphlet urged Cincinnati voters to unseat Hamilton County Prosecutor Simon L. Leis Jr. and Common Pleas Court Judge William J. Morrissey, who presided over Flynt's obscenity trial last February. It also called for defeat of Georgia's Fulton County Solicitor Hinson McAuliffe.

Flynt is free pending appeal of the Cincinnati conviction, which carries a sentence of from seven to 25 years in prison and a fine of $11,000.

Full Production Resume By O-I

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Full production resumed at Owens-Illinois Inc. glass container manufacturing plants Friday following the resolution of a strike that began Sept. 16, company officials said.

Negotiators for the American Flint Glass Workers Union accepted a new three-year contract Thursday night following meetings with federal mediators and officials of the Glass Packaging Institute, the trade association representing glass container manufacturers.

The new pact provides for a 70-cent hourly pay hike the first year, retroactive to July 12, and lesser raises with cost-of-living increases the other two years.

Senate Finance Panel Works On Energy Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee which rejected President Carter's proposed energy taxes, has set the stage for enactment of a bill imposing some of those same taxes.

If the full Senate goes along with legislation recommended by the committee, a SenateHouse conference will decide later this month which of Carter's tax suggestions should become law.

The result is likely to be a marriage of some of Carter's new taxes — a plan largely approved by the House — with some of the tax breaks proposed by the Senate committee.

Energy Secretary James Schlesinger said Friday the administration hopes the final version will be close to the original Carter plan. He also said the administration is not willing to rewrite its energy program, but will fight to get as many of its proposals into the final bill as possible.

The finance committee approved its version of the energy tax bill Friday.

While Carter would depend on new taxes to force energy conservation, the finance committee would rely solely on a series of tax breaks to reward conservation. The tax breaks are estimated to cost the treasury about $32 billion between 1978 and 1985.

The Senate is expected to begin debate on the tax bill about Oct. 25. It is unlikely that any effort will be made to restore the Carter taxes there.

But since the taxes are included in the House-passed bill, the conference committee must consider them when it meets to work out the final compromise version of the legislation.

Thus, the final bill could contain the heart of Carter's energy program — a new tax designed to force conservation by raising the price of U.S.-produced oil — and some form of penalty on cars with low gasoline mileage.

It is less likely to include another big Carter tax, a new levy aimed at forcing factories to switch from oil or gas to coal.

The House approved all three taxes. The Senate finance committee rejected them, opting for its tax breaks, mainly for industries, utilities and businesses.

The biggest tax break, designed to save one million barrels of oil a day, would have the federal government pay half the cost of new boilers and other equipment to convert facilities from oil or natural gas to coal.

Other provisions would allow special tax credits for producers of energy from exotic sources, such as oil from shale rock and natural gas from ocean brine.

Toledo Police Seek Nursing Home Burglar

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — A teen-ager who robbed three female nursing home attendants at gunpoint and forced them to frisk sleeping patients for jewelry was being sought Sunday by Toledo police.

Police said the lone gunman, appearing to be about 16 years old and wearing a ski mask, escaped the Rest Haven Manor Nursing home before dawn Saturday with a small quantity of morphine and a watch taken from the wrist of one of 50 elderly patients.

The attendants told police they were required to act as lookouts while the young bandit ransacked offices before supervising a systematic search for valuables in 30 bedrooms. The search netted only the watch.

Ohio Promoted As Good Place To Make Movies

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The huge killer shark slithered about Lake Erie, gobbling up unsuspecting boaters and swimmers, instilling terror up and down the shoreline.

Lake Erie?

The scene was clear in the mind of Mari Soult.

Ms. Soult, who prefers that designation, is paid to think such thoughts as director of the Ohio Film Bureau.

Her imagination almost brought the shooting of "Jaws II" to Ohio's Lake Erie shore before losing out to Pensacola, Fla.

Demonstrators March At Statehouse

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Leaders of a Statehouse demonstration by about 100 persons and a march on City Hall Saturday said they fear the Ku Klux Klan will try to feed on the nation's problems to swell its ranks.

Paul Hollister, 27, of Columbus, said the Klan is trying to capitalize on "problems like unemployment and desegregation. I don't think support for the Klan is very big," he said, "but they can get bigger."

Hollister said he is a member of a defense committee seeking support for six persons arrested at KKK rallies on July 4 and Labor Day holidays.

The two-hour rally by demonstrators from Cincinnati, Dayton, Cleveland and Columbus was organized by the defense committee and the National United Workers Organization.

The demonstrators, carrying banners and posters and chanting slogans such as "KKK go away, united we are here to stay," listened to speakers at the Statehouse before a downtown march to City Hall for another round of speeches.

"The Klan is guilty of trying to keep black people in near slavery conditions," Hollister told the crowd.

"The Klan is spreading the idea that white people should blame blacks and other minorities for problems in society. I don't think that an organization like that has a right to exist."

The list of speakers included Alan Canfora of Barberton, a member of the May Fourth Coalition which staged a summer-long demonstration against the construction of a gymnasium annex at Kent State University.

"We're all up against the same enemy," Canfora told the rally, "the rich class that runs the country."

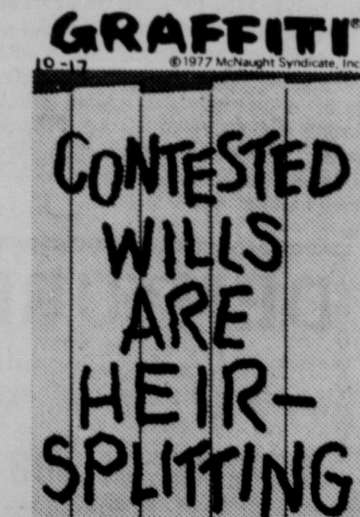

Kim Trial Slated

FINDLAY, Ohio (AP) — Findlay College trustee Hanch C. Kim will go on trial Jan. 9 in Washington on charges stemming from an investigation of alleged bribery and influence buying by members of the south Korean Central Intelligence Agency.

Kim, who attended Findlay College during the 1954-55 school year, and has served as a trustee since 1975, will be tried in U. S. District Court. He was indicted Sept. 27 in Washington on charges of conspiracy to defraud the United States and lying to a grand jury.

Kim lives in Maryland where he is an executive with a cosmetics manufacturing firm.

College officials have refrained from comment on the Kim case, but say they expect the subject to come up at the next board meeting Nov. 14.

Baptists Mix Business With Their Religion

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Members of Good Shepherd Baptist Church believe in mixing business with religion, and their efforts could mean an economic boom for the inner city area near their church.

"We have an evangelistic ministry," said Dr. Harold E. Pinkston Sr., pastor of the church whose 350-member congregation owns the Good Shepherd Gulf Station next door and two blocks of frontage on a busy Columbus thoroughfare.

"We feel the church should be the spiritual center of the community and a place people can look to for guidance," the minister said.

One way the church serves the community is at the service station, which is open every day of the week — except Sunday. Earlier this year, church members wanted more parking space and bought the abandoned station, then decided to operate it with a church trustee as manager.

"We trust the station will generate community interest and participation and funds which will enhance the total church ministry itself," Pinkston said.

As pastor, Pinkston is president of Good Shepherd Investments and Enterprises Corp., the legal owner of property the pastor values at more than $500,000 and the business he says is worth a quarter of a million dollars.

The station is just the beginning of plans Pinkston and his congregation have for their neighborhood.

Legislature Convenes

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The legislature convenes this week with Democratic leaders determined to save the election day registration law, a pre-occupation which is expected to keep the lid on some controversial issues.

But concern over Issue 1 on the Nov. 8 ballot apparently will not forestall action, starting Wednesday, on a more immediate danger — the threatened closing of the 110,000-pupil Cleveland school district.

A "bail-out" plan has been readied to allow the state's largest district to borrow $19 million from anticipated tax revenues from 1978, to meet a deficit for the period between Monday and Dec. 31.

Since a number of other school districts are also in danger of closing early for the year, majority Democrats are braced for negative repercussions. As drawn, it would apply only to Cleveland and would impose a repayment schedule that must be completed by next June 30.

While the decision has been made to address the politically embarrassing Cleveland problem, the legislature will not finalize legislation this week to extend collective bargaining rights to some 500,000 public employees.

That bill is in the limbo of a House-Senate conference committee. The sponsor, Sen. Harry Meshell, D-33 Youngstown, has not planned any meetings, and a stand-off may extend beyond the November election, which Democrats consider critical to their chances of capturing the governor's post in 1978.

Despite claims of nonpartisanship by both sides, Democrats and Republicans alike know that repeal of the law permitting Ohioans to register and vote at polling places on election day would be a big blow to the Ohio Democratic Party and organized labor.

House members will be back on Thursday to field the school bill, assuming it passes the Senate. Both chambers plan to adjourn later the same day.

By then Cleveland and state school officials, who have delayed setting a closing date for the district, will know whether kids in Ohio's largest city will be taking Christmas vacation two months early because of the financial difficulties.

Pheromones Controls Cutworm Population

WOOSTER, Ohio (AP) — Male cutworm moths can't help it. They just love the smell of sex pheromones.

The crop-damaging insects are attracted to pheromones because they are secreted by female cutworm moths. Research which has resulted in manufacture of a synthetic equivalent of the substance is about to change control of the pests.

Scientists from the Ohio State University Cooperative Extension Service and the New York Agricultural Experiment Station at Geneva, Ohio, have used the manufactured substance in corn and vegetable fields in northeast Ohio to reveal the presence and activity of the male moths.

By saturating a field with pheromones, scientists found that it's even possible to make the males too confused to find the females. Given time, this could be used to decrease the population of the crop eaters.

Dr. Roy W. Rings of the Ohio Agriculture Research and Development Center at Wooster said the findings resulted from a four-year effort to develop ways to control the insect.

LONG DISTANCE COMMUNICATIONS — Gregory Kaplan studies a globe and thinks of going to Yap Island. More than a year ago Gregory, who's from Los Angeles, wrote a letter and placed it in a bottle which he tossed into the Pacific Ocean near Santa Monica, Calif. This year Simeon Mangremeng, a schoolboy 6,000 miles away on Yap Island in the Carolines, found the message and wrote to Gregory.

Baptists Mix Business With Their Religion

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Members of Good Shepherd Baptist Church believe in mixing business with religion, and their efforts could mean an economic boom for the inner city area near their church.

"We have an evangelistic ministry," said Dr. Harold E. Pinkston Sr., pastor of the church whose 350-member congregation owns the Good Shepherd Gulf Station next door and two blocks of frontage on a busy Columbus thoroughfare.

"We feel the church should be the spiritual center of the community and a place people can look to for guidance," the minister said.

One way the church serves the community is at the service station, which is open every day of the week — except Sunday. Earlier this year, church members wanted more parking space and bought the abandoned station, then decided to operate it with a church trustee as manager.

"We trust the station will generate community interest and participation and funds which will enhance the total church ministry itself," Pinkston said.

As pastor, Pinkston is president of Good Shepherd Investments and Enterprises Corp., the legal owner of property the pastor values at more than $500,000 and the business he says is worth a quarter of a million dollars.

The station is just the beginning of plans Pinkston and his congregation have for their neighborhood.

Legislature Convenes

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The legislature convenes this week with Democratic leaders determined to save the election day registration law, a pre-occupation which is expected to keep the lid on some controversial issues.

But concern over Issue 1 on the Nov. 8 ballot apparently will not forestall action, starting Wednesday, on a more immediate danger — the threatened closing of the 110,000-pupil Cleveland school district.

A "bail-out" plan has been readied to allow the state's largest district to borrow $19 million from anticipated tax revenues from 1978, to meet a deficit for the period between Monday and Dec. 31.

Since a number of other school districts are also in danger of closing early for the year, majority Democrats are braced for negative repercussions. As drawn, it would apply only to Cleveland and would impose a repayment schedule that must be completed by next June 30.

While the decision has been made to address the politically embarrassing Cleveland problem, the legislature will not finalize legislation this week to extend collective bargaining rights to some 500,000 public employees.

That bill is in the limbo of a House-Senate conference committee. The sponsor, Sen. Harry Meshell, D-33 Youngstown, has not planned any meetings, and a stand-off may extend beyond the November election, which Democrats consider critical to their chances of capturing the governor's post in 1978.

Despite claims of nonpartisanship by both sides, Democrats and Republicans alike know that repeal of the law permitting Ohioans to register and vote at polling places on election day would be a big blow to the Ohio Democratic Party and organized labor.

"Vern and Oliver have both been working very hard on the issue," a spokesman for the leadership said of House Speaker Vernal G. Riffe, D-89 New Boston, and Senate Majority Leader Oliver Ocasek, D-27 Akron.

The result has been a temporary loss of enthusiasm for the in-fighting needed to rally votes for politically-charged legislation, like the proposed limited right of public employees to strike.

Meshell, chairman of the Senate Financing Committee, has tabbed the $517 million capital improvements construction budget as the week's priority item. The House-approved spending plan for state building projects is the last plan in the state's $15 billion 1977-79 budget.

Meshell will accept amendments and vote the bill out of a subcommittee Monday and approve it in full committee no later than Tuesday, he said, so it can go on the Senate floor Wednesday.

House members will be back on Thursday to field the school bill, assuming it passes the Senate. Both chambers plan to adjourn later the same day.

By then Cleveland and state school officials, who have delayed setting a closing date for the district, will know whether kids in Ohio's largest city will be taking Christmas vacation two months early because of the financial difficulties.

Pheromones Controls Cutworm Population

WOOSTER, Ohio (AP) — Male cutworm moths can't help it. They just love the smell of sex pheromones.

The crop-damaging insects are attracted to pheromones because they are secreted by female cutworm moths. Research which has resulted in manufacture of a synthetic equivalent of the substance is about to change control of the pests.

Scientists from the Ohio State University Cooperative Extension Service and the New York Agricultural Experiment Station at Geneva, Ohio have used the manufactured substance in corn and vegetable fields in northeast Ohio to reveal the presence and activity of the male moths.

By saturating a field with pheromones, scientists found that it's even possible to make the males too confused to find the females. Given time, this could be used to decrease the population of the crop eaters.

Dr. Roy W. Rings of the Ohio Agriculture Research and Development Center at Wooster said the findings resulted from a four-year effort to develop ways to control the insect.

TOUCHDOWN — Jerry Scanlan scores his second touchdown of the game in Saturday's 37-6 victory by Logan Elm over Liberty Union. This was from the one yard line. His first was a 79 yard jaunt on the first play from scrimmage in Saturday's Mid State League battle.

Braves Stop Liberty Union

The Logan Elm Braves piled up the yardage and the points on a rainy Saturday night at Liberty Union, beating the Lions 37-6 in a Mid State League football game.

The win gives Logan Elm a 4-1-1 overall record and a 3-1-1 mark in the Mid State League while the Lions in a rebuilding situation are winless.

"It was a good victory," LE coach Bill Frost said after the game. "We played the way we should play. The kids did a good job blocking and our backs were outstanding."

The Braves struck with lightning quickness after receiving the opening kickoff of the game. Jerry Scanlan went all the way on the first play from scrimmage, 79 yards, to score the initial touchdown. Quarterback Tony Crist hit Rock Huggins in the end zone with a pass for the two-point conversion and LE held an 8-0 lead with just 32 seconds gone in the football game.

The second time they got possession of the football, they marched 57 yards downfield with Scanlan carrying the ball in from the one-yard line. The kick for the extra point, the first one that LE fans have seen this year by the Braves, was no good, and the Braves led 14-0 with 3:08 remaining to play in the first quarter.

Five minutes into the third quarter the Braves scored again, this time on an 80-yard jaunt by Jim Weaver. This time the kick for the extra point sailed through the uprights and the score was 21-0. Scanlan's toe provided the extra point and showed the LE fans a new offensive weapon.

That was all the scoring in the first half. The Lions never threatened.

However, they took the opening kickoff of the second half and marched 76 yards down the field to score. The big gainer in the drive was a 38-yard scamper by Rick Hoshor. An unnecessary roughness penalty against the Braves added another 15 yards to that run and Liberty Union had a first down at the 11.

Five plays later Mark Pettit, a freshman halfback, was able to score for the hosts. The run for the conversion was stopped by the Braves' defense.

Jeff Seimer recovered a fumble at the Liberty Union 27-yard marker to set up the fourth LE touchdown. The final yardage came on the first play of the final period and was a 2-yard plunge by Bubba Eanes. Scanlan's kick again split the uprights and the Braves were on top, 28-6.

Later in the period, with Liberty Union deep in their own territory, a snap from center sailed over the head of the Lion punter and out of the end zone giving Logan Elm a 2-point safety and a 30-6 lead.

On the free kick following the safety, the Braves advanced the ball back to the Liberty Union 33.

There Brian Hannigan, a starting defensive halfback and the backup quarterback for the Braves, attempted a handoff that was fumbled. Then Hannigan caught the entire LU team by surprise by picking up the fumble, skirting left end and negotiating the 33 yards to paydirt untouched.

Scanlan again kicked the extra point for the 37-6 score that stood at the end of the game.

LE coach Frost reported that everyone played in the tilt. In fact, during that final period the coaching staff was more concerned with getting everybody onto the field than with anything else.

"We didn't intentionally run up the score on them," Frost said. "I don't believe in doing that to anybody," almost apologizing for the final point spread. But while Logan Elm was substituting freely in the fourth quarter, so was Liberty Union. The final points came against the Lion reserves. Frost did feel the win was a good morale builder because the reserves had the opportunity to play and were able to move the ball against Liberty Union.

Weaver was the leading ground-gainer for the Braves, picking up 129 yards on the ground. Scanlan accounted for 115 yards. For both of them, the bulk of the yardage came in the first half.

Dave Elsea also had a good night for LE gaining 54 yards and Eanes accounted for 28 yards.

One thing that had to worry the coaches, although it was not mentioned after the tilt, was the 145 yards in penalties that Logan Elm was assessed by the officials. One of those penalties killed a 49-yard touchdown run by Scanlan.

Friday the Braves return home, facing Canal Winchester.

Head coach Terry Donahue of UCLA played in a Rose Bowl game for the Bruins and also served as an assistant coach in the New Year's Day contest at Pasadena.

LA Manager Holds Revival

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An old fashioned revival meeting, called by their very own faith healer, Tom Lasorda, was credited with transforming the Dodger blues back into the Dodger Blue.

"This was the real 1977 Dodger team," said Steve Garvey after Lasorda preached fire and brimstone and the Dodger bats spoke firepower and base hits. The combination was pure salvation for the National League champions, who rapped out 13 hits, four for extra bases, to blast the New York Yankees 10-4 Sunday.

The World Series now hops back to the East Coast with the Yankees ahead 3 games to 2 and still lacking one victory before they can claim their 21st world title.

Yankees Manager Billy Martin originally named Ed Figueroa, troubled by a sore finger the past few weeks, to be his starting pitcher for Game 6 Tuesday night. But Figueroa, not as ready to pitch as Martin said he was, balked, forcing Martin to switch to Mike Torrez, the third-game winner.

Lasorda will be going with a proven winner of his own, Burt Hooton, who stifled the New York bats on five hits in the second game at Yankee Stadium last Wednesday night.

On the verge of extinction Sunday, Lasorda turned preacher, telling his players in a pregame meeting that, win or lose, "I wouldn't trade this baseball team for any other team in the world."

Ron Cey, the Dodgers third baseman and the only regular without a hit or a run scored Sunday, was skeptical about the importance of the team meeting, but decided: "The results were there."

Hale Irwin Wins Texas Open Golf

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Hale Irwin won $30,000, a golf tournament and a ton of respect from a fellow golf pro after his closing-round three-under-par 67 in the $150,000 Texas Open.

Irwin, battling Texan Miller Barber for the first place prize, paused on the 18th tee Sunday to offer encouragement to Carlton "Slugger" White, a second-year pro fighting for his PGA player's card.

White entered the Texas Open with $924.50 in earnings this year and needed to bring his winnings up to $7,000 or forfeit his card. Fifth place in the tournament would breathe life into his golf career, but a poorly hit wedge shot on the 17th hole resulted in a double bogey six that plummeted White from third to a fourth place tie with George Archer.

"I can't describe how bad I felt after making that double bogey," said an emotional White. "But Hale came over and patted me on the back and told me to forget it, that I still had a chance."

White then placed his tee shot at the treacherous 175-yard 18th hole about 10 feet below the pin. He two-putted for a par three and collected $6,600, thus assuring himself of at least another year on the tour.

"I was really pulling for him," said Irwin, whose Texas Open title was his third tour win of the year and raised his season money-winning total to $221,455.

"We have a lot of Carlton Whites on the tour. Good players and gentlemen who face a this-week-or-no-week situation. It's one thing to play well for first and another to play for your career," Irwin said.

Barber bogeyed the final hole to finish with a 66-268 for second place. Last year Barber was the runnerup in this event, the oldest PGA tournament in Texas, losing to Butch Baird in a sudden death playoff.

CHS Reserves Blast Wilmington

The Circleville High school reserve football team downed Wilmington's Hurryin' Hurricane football reserves by a 29-0 count Saturday morning.

Scoring in the Tigers in the first quarter was Jeff Pauley on a five yard run. Les Robinson added the extra point kick.

The Tiger defensive unit also scored a safety on Wilmington's offense when Mike Linton nailed a Wilmington ball carrier in the endzone.

In the third period, Danny Martin added six more when he scooted 17 yards to paydirt.

Passes gave the Tigers their last two scores in the final period of play. The first was a 23 yard toss from Von Bakalas to Dave Happeny. German Esher booted the extra point. Mike Contino fired a strike to Dennis Lester minutes later that covered 12 yards. Esher again kicked the bonus.

Now 5-0 on the season, the Tiger reserves take on the Miami Trace Panthers this Saturday morning at Tiger Stadium starting at 10 a.m.

ALL WEATHER BANKING AT THE SAVINGS AUTO BANK MEMBER FDIC

Those results included Steve Yeager's three-run homer in the fourth inning, Reggie Smith's two-run blast in the sixth and the sound, nine-hit pitching by Don Sutton.

"I normally don't believe in rah-rah pep meetings," said Yeager, who also contributed a fifth-inning sacrifice fly before leaving the game with strained ligaments in his knee. "But it evidently worked for some guys."

Yeager said he had two games left in his ailing knee. "I'll see you Wednesday night (after Game 7) in our clubhouse," Yeager told newsmen.

Garvey also expects to be in the winning clubhouse Wednesday night, but said it wouldn't be a bad idea to have another pregame revival meeting.

"At one point we were 7-0 after team meetings," said Garvey, who had a double and a single and scored a pair of runs. "I guess this make us 8-0."

"We're human beings and human beings get tired mentally and depressed mentally. What Tom Lasorda did was he got everybody together and, again, told us of his feelings of warmth and affection for us. As human beings we can benefit from this."

"It got our feelings moving in the right direction."

Garvey stroked a double to right center in the fourth and came home on Dusty Baker's single to left, which Lou Piniella misplayed, allowing Baker to take second. That was New York's first error of the Series and it took just one batter for error No. 2, as third baseman Graig Nettles dropped Lee Lacy's ground ball. Yeager then followed with his second Series homer for a 5-0 lead.

"It was do or die today," said Yeager. "The homer gave us a big inning and took the pressure off the rest of the team. You saw the key to our game today. Davey Lopes and Bill Russell getting on base ahead of our big hitters like Smith, Cey and Garvey."

The Dodgers made it 8-0 in the fifth on RBI singles by Baker and Lee Lacy and Yeager's sacrifice fly.

Baker credited the team meeting and the team's leadoff hitters in the Dodgers revival at the plate.

"We were just reminded that we're better than we've been playing, that we haven't been playing the way we played all year," Baker said.

"Russell and Lopes got things moving. When they're on base, the batters behind them see better pitches. It makes things easier for us. They ignite things for us."

Russell got the Dodgers believers in the dugout and the faithful of 55,955 in the stands up and clapping again with a single to right-center in the sixth. Smith, a victim of a rubber ball beaming from the stands at Yankee Stadium last Wednesday, sent a hard ball back into the stands for his second Series homer.

"If today's clubhouse atmosphere was any indication, then I feel our chances are good," Smith said. "I'm happy to be going back to Yankee Stadium. It's a big ballpark with big gaps and we're a gap-hitting team."

"The fans? They're gonna be there. The less said about them the better."

The Yankees scored twice off Sutton in the seventh and got consecutive solo homers from Thurman Munson and Reggie Jackson in the eighth.

"We still have the advantage," said Jackson, one of the centers of the storms that have the Yankees calling team meetings not to bring people together — like the Dodgers — but to keep them from going for each other's throats.

"They have to play 1,000 ball and we only have to play .500 ball," Jackson said.

As Garvey pointed out the Dodgers have played 1,000 ball immediately after one of Lasorda's revival meetings.

Hallelujah.

Tigers Battle UA To 0-0 Standoff

It was a standoff at the Circleville Junior High School Saturday morning, as the Tiger freshman football team battled Upper Arlington Jones to a scoreless tie. Both squads entered the fray with spotless records.

The stiff Tiger defense held the big city boys to 68 yards rushing and 40 passing. Circleville's offense rolled to 149 yards rushing and 21 passing.

Stuart Payne led the field with 83 yards in 10 carries, while Bob Milstead gathered 36 yards in six trips.

In what he called a "hard hitting defense struggle," Truex cited the following Tigers for an outstanding defensive game: Payne, Milstead, Dallas Hettinger, Tony Zimmerman, Brad Fisher, Greg Greenlee, Paul Leahy, and Mark Gearhardt.

Coming on for praise on the offense was quarterback Brad Fisher, as he ran for a key first down and passed for two others.

Now 4-0-1, the freshmen play again this Saturday at home against Upper Arlington Hastings, starting at 10 a.m.

Game Time Is Changed

Teays Valley High School athletic director Bill Lewis has announced that a ticket presale for this Friday's game in Franklin County Stadium will be held in the main office of the high school on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday of this week.

Both adult and student tickets will be sold during regular school hours.

The starting time for the contest with the Hamilton Twp. Rangers is set for 7:30 p.m. instead of the regular 8 p.m. kickoff.

Gerald Makes Option Work For Ohio State

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Ohio State quarterback Rod Gerald may be the fastest quarterback in the Big Ten. He can complete a pass when he has to. He makes the option an awesome challenge to defend.

"He was the difference," Iowa Coach Bob Cummings said of Gerald, who ran for 100 yards and two touchdowns and completed nine of 12 passes in the Buckeyes' 27-6 victory over Iowa. "He's as fast as any running back they have."

Iowa held No. 5-ranked Ohio State to just one field goal in the first quarter, but the Buckeyes wore down Iowa after that.

"They're just much better than us, and it hurts me bitterly to say that," said Cummings. "But we're getting better."

"They (Ohio State) can still be beaten," said Cummings. "We could have beaten them if we'd taken care of ourselves."

Ohio State won the coin toss, and Coach Woody Hayes chose to kick off to take advantage of a gusty 25 mile an hour wind. An early Iowa drive was halted by a dropped pass, but punter Dave Holsclaw was able to keep the Buckeyes out of good field position.

"Iowa is better than it has been," acknowledged Hayes. "This year they were more dogged."

Proof of that was a second quarter defensive stand that kept Ohio State out of the end zone on four successive tries inside the one yard line.

"There aren't many teams that could stop us down there on the one yard line or one foot line or whatever it was," said Hayes.

Gerald ran 44 yards for a touchdown off the option, and two field goals by Vlade Janakievski gave Ohio State a 13-0 halftime lead. Gerald burst two yards for a touchdown in the third quarter, and reserve fullback Paul Campbell crashed over from the one in the final period.

Iowa didn't score until just over a minute remained when fullback Jon Lazar drove in from the two.

"Our defense was exceptional last week (in a 46-0 shutout of Purdue) and almost as good this week," said Hayes. "We really throttled them until there at the last when they finally punched one over on us."

Ohio State, the Big Ten rushing leader, netted 373 yards on the ground while holding Iowa to 69 yards rushing.

Garvey also expects to be in the winning clubhouse Wednesday night, but said it wouldn't be a bad idea to have another pregame revival meeting.

"At one point we were 7-0 after team meetings," said Garvey, who had a double and a single and scored a pair of runs. "I guess this make us 8-0."

"We're human beings and human beings get tired mentally and depressed mentally. What Tom Lasorda did was he got everybody together and, again, told us of his feelings of warmth and affection for us. As human beings we can benefit from this."

"It got our feelings moving in the right direction."

That direction was evident immediately in Game 5. Dodger leadoff batter Davey Lopes socked a triple off the top of the left-field wall against Yankees starter Don Gullett, who started on Opening Day but did not figure in the decision. No. 2 batter Bill Russell smacked a single to left for a 1-0 lead.

Garvey stroked a double to right center in the fourth and came home on Dusty Baker's single to left, which Lou Piniella misplayed, allowing Baker to take second. That was New York's first error of the Series and it took just one batter for error No. 2, as third baseman Graig Nettles dropped Lee Lacy's ground ball. Yeager then followed with his second Series homer for a 5-0 lead.

"It was do or die today," said Yeager. "The homer gave us a big inning and took the pressure off the rest of the team. You saw the key to our game today. Davey Lopes and Bill Russell getting on base ahead of our big hitters like Smith, Cey and Garvey."

The Dodgers made it 8-0 in the fifth on RBI singles by Baker and Lee Lacy and Yeager's sacrifice fly.

Baker credited the team meeting and the team's leadoff hitters in the Dodgers revival at the plate.

"We were just reminded that we're better than we've been playing, that we haven't been playing the way we played all year," Baker said.

"Russell and Lopes got things moving. When they're on base, the batters behind them see better pitches. It makes things easier for us. They ignite things for us."

Russell got the Dodgers believers in the dugout and the faithful of 55,955 in the stands up and clapping again with a single to right-center in the sixth. Smith, a victim of a rubber ball beaming from the stands at Yankee Stadium last Wednesday, sent a hard ball back into the stands for his second Series homer.

"If today's clubhouse atmosphere was any indication, then I feel our chances are good," Smith said. "I'm happy to be going back to Yankee Stadium. It's a big ballpark with big gaps and we're a gap-hitting team."

"The fans? They're gonna be there. The less said about them the better."

The Yankees scored twice off Sutton in the seventh and got consecutive solo homers from Thurman Munson and Reggie Jackson in the eighth.

"We still have the advantage," said Jackson, one of the centers of the storms that have the Yankees calling team meetings not to bring people together — like the Dodgers — but to keep them from going for each other's throats.

"They have to play 1,000 ball and we only have to play .500 ball," Jackson said.

As Garvey pointed out the Dodgers have played 1,000 ball immediately after one of Lasorda's revival meetings. Hallalujah.

Tigers Battle UA To 0-0 Standoff

It was a standoff at the Circleville Junior High School Saturday morning, as the Tiger freshman football team battled Upper Arlington Jones to a scoreless tie. Both squads entered the fray with spotless records.

The stiff Tiger defense held the big city boys to 68 yards rushing and 40 passing. Circleville's offense rolled to 149 yards rushing and 21 passing.

Stuart Payne led the field with 83 yards in 10 carries, while Bob Milstead gathered 36 yards in six trips.

Fresh Coach Dave Truex cited penalties to both teams during key drives as the reason for no scores.

In what he called a "hard hitting defense struggle," Truex cited the following Tigers for an outstanding defensive game: Payne, Milstead, Dallas Hettinger, Tony Zimmerman, Brad Fisher, Greg Greenlee, Paul Leahy, and Mark Gearhardt.

Coming on for praise on the offense was quarterback Brad Fisher, as he ran for a key first down and passed for two others.

Now 4-0-1, the freshmen play again this Saturday at home against Upper Arlington Hastings, starting at 10 a.m.

Game Time Is Changed

Teays Valley High School athletic director Bill Lewis has announced that a ticket presale for this Friday's game in Franklin County Stadium will be held in the main office of the high school on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday of this week.

Both adult and student tickets will be sold during regular school hours.

The starting time for the contest with the Hamilton Twp. Rangers is set for 7:30 p.m. instead of the regular 8 p.m. kickoff.

TOUCHDOWN — Jerry Scanlan scores his second touchdown of the game in Saturday's 37-6 victory by Logan Elm over Liberty Union. This was from the one yard line. His first was a 79 yard jaunt on the first play from scrimmage in Saturday's Mid State League battle.

Braves Stop Liberty Union

The Logan Elm Braves piled up the yardage and the points on a rainy Saturday night at Liberty Union, beating the Lions 37-6 in a Mid State League football game.

The win gives Logan Elm a 4-1-1 overall record and a 3-1-1 mark in the Mid State League while the Lions in a rebuilding situation are winless.

"It was a good victory," LE coach Bill Frost said after the game. "We played the way we should play. The kids did a good job blocking and our backs were outstanding."

The Braves struck with lightning quickness after receiving the opening kickoff of the game. Jerry Scanlan went all the way on the first play from scrimmage, 79 yards, to score the initial touchdown. Quarterback Tony Crist hit Rock Huggins in the end zone with a pass for the two-point conversion and LE held an 8-0 lead with just 32 seconds gone in the football game.

The second time they got possession of the football, they marched 57 yards downfield with Scanlan carrying the ball in from the one-yard line. The kick for the extra point, the first one that LE fans have seen this year by the Braves, was no good, and the Braves led 14-0 with 3:08 remaining to play in the first quarter.

Five minutes into the third quarter the Braves scored again, this time on an 80-yard jaunt by Jim Weaver. This time the kick for the extra point sailed through the uprights and the score was 21-0. Scanlan's toe provided the extra point and showed the LE fans a new offensive weapon.

That was all the scoring in the first half. The Lions never threatened.

However, they took the opening kickoff of the second half and marched 76 yards down the field to score. The big gainer in the drive was a 38-yard scamper by Rick Hoshor. An unnecessary roughness penalty against the Braves added another 15 yards to that run and Liberty Union had a first down at the 11.

Five plays later Mark Pettit, a freshman halfback, was able to score for the hosts. The run for the conversion was stopped by the Braves' defense.

Jeff Seimer recovered a fumble at the Liberty Union 27-yard marker to set up the fourth LE touchdown. The final yardage came on the first play of the final period and was a 2-yard plunge by Bubba Eanes. Scanlan's kick again split the uprights and the Braves were on top, 28-6.

Later in the period, with Liberty Union deep in their own territory, a snap from center sailed over the head of the Lion punter and out of the end zone giving Logan Elm a 2-point safety and a 30-6 lead.

On the free kick following the safety, the Braves advanced the ball back to the Liberty Union 33.

There Brian Hannigan, a starting defensive halfback and the backup quarterback for the Braves, attempted a handoff that was fumbled. Then Hannigan caught the entire LU team by surprise by picking up the fumble, skirting left end and negotiating the 33 yards to paydirt untouched.

Scanlan again kicked the extra point for the 37-6 score that stood at the end of the game.

LE coach Frost reported that everyone played in the tilt. In fact, during that final period the coaching staff was more concerned with getting everybody onto the field than with anything else.

"We didn't intentionally run up the score on them," Frost said. "I don't believe in doing that to anybody," almost apologizing for the final point spread. But while Logan Elm was substituting freely in the fourth quarter, so was Liberty Union. The final points came against the Lion reserves. Frost did feel the win was a good morale builder because the reserves had the opportunity to play and were able to move the ball against Liberty Union.

Weaver was the leading ground-gainer for the Braves, picking up 129 yards on the ground. Scanlan accounted for 115 yards. For both of them, the bulk of the yardage came in the first half.

Dave Elsea also had a good night for LE gaining 54 yards and Eanes accounted for 28 yards.

One thing that had to worry the coaches, although it was not mentioned after the tilt, was the 145 yards in penalties that Logan Elm was assessed by the officials. One of those penalties killed a 49-yard touchdown run by Scanlan.

Friday the Braves return home, facing Canal Winchester.

Head coach Terry Donahue of UCLA played in a Rose Bowl game for the Bruins and also served as an assistant coach in the New Year's Day contest at Pasadena.

Gerald Makes Option Work For Ohio State

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Ohio State quarterback Rod Gerald may be the fastest quarterback in the Big Ten. He can complete a pass when he has to. He makes the option an awesome challenge to defend.

"He was the difference," Iowa Coach Bob Commings said of Gerald, who ran for 100 yards and two touchdowns and completed nine of 12 passes in the Buckeyes' 27-6 victory over Iowa. "He's as fast as any running back they have."

Iowa held No. 5-ranked Ohio State to just one field goal in the first quarter, but the Buckeyes wore down Iowa after that.

"They're just much better than us, and it hurts me bitterly to say that," said Commings. "But we're getting better."

"They (Ohio State) can still be beaten," said Commings. "We could have beaten them if we'd taken care of ourselves."

Ohio State won the coin toss, and Coach Woody Hayes chose to kick off to take advantage of a gusty 25 mile an hour wind. An early Iowa drive was halted by a dropped pass, but punter Dave Holsclaw was able to keep the Buckeyes out of good field position.

"Iowa is better than it has been," acknowledged Hayes. "This year they were more dogged."

Proof of that was a second quarter defensive stand that kept Ohio State out of the end zone on four successive tries inside the one yard line.

"There aren't many teams that could stop us down there on the one yard line or one foot line or whatever it was," said Hayes.

Gerald ran 44 yards for a touchdown off the option, and two field goals by Vlade Janakievski gave Ohio State a 13-0 halftime lead. Gerald burst two yards for a touchdown in the third quarter, and reserve fullback Paul Campbell crashed over from the one in the final period.

Iowa didn't score until just over a minute remained when fullback Jon Lazar drove in from the two.

"Our defense was exceptional last week (in a 46-0 shutout of Purdue) and almost as good this week," said Hayes. "We really throttled them until there at the last when they finally punched one over on us."

Ohio State, the Big Ten rushing leader, netted 373 yards on the ground while holding Iowa to 69 yards rushing.

Denver Surprises Oakland

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Sports Writer

Jim Turner has to be higher than Denver, which is a mile high to begin with. The 36-year-old placekicker caught a touchdown pass in the Bronco's surprise rout of the Oakland Raiders.

Denver was leading Oakland 14-7 in the second quarter Sunday when Turner trotted on for a field-goal attempt. But it was a fake. Holder Norris Weese, a reserve quarterback, took the snap and rolled right to pass.

"I looked first for Riley Odoms (a tight end)," said Weese. "But you can't waste time on the play and I saw Turner wide open ... and couldn't believe it."

Turner had drifted to his left and was standing alone in the end zone where he caught the 25-yard pass that gave the Broncos a 21-7 halftime lead en route to a 30-7 victory. It boosted Denver to a 5-0 record and a one-game lead over Oakland in the American Conference West.

"I ran into the end zone out of fear," said Turner. "Speed wasn't involved."

While Turner's first touchdown in 14 National Football League seasons was certainly a highlight, it was the Denver defense that did in Oakland, intercepting seven Ken Stabler passes, three by linebacker Joe Rizzo, and recovering a fumble.

"We stunk up the place," said Stabler, who gave Oakland a 7-0 lead with a nine-yard scoring pass to tight end Dave Casper in the first quarter. But Denver tied it before the period ended on Craig Morton's 10-yard touchdown toss to Odoms and went ahead in the second quarter on Lonnie Perrien's 16-yard touchdown run.

The loss stopped Oakland's winning streak at 17 regular season and playoff games, one short of the record held by the Chicago Bears of 1933-34 and 1941-42 and the Miami Dolphins of 1972-73.

A successful fake field goal at Bloomington, Minn., resulted in a 21-16 victory for the Minnesota Vikings over the Chicago Bears in overtime.

"It seemed like the thing to do," said Bud Grant, who ordered the fake attempt on first down on the Chicago 11-yard line 6:45 into overtime. It worked as holder Paul Krause, a defensive back who played quarterback at Iowa, passed to Stu Voight near the goal and Voight took it in for the winner.

Chicago, which got 122 yards rushing from Walter Payton, had gone ahead 16-13 in the third quarter on Bob Avellini's two-yard pass to Greg Latta. Fred Cox then tied it at 16 with his third field goal, a 21-yarder, with 12:24 left in regulation time. Matt Blair, Minnesota's 6-foot-5 linebacker, played a key role by blocking a conversion attempt in the second quarter and a field-goal attempt with 1:41 left in regulation play.

Dallas and Baltimore remained the only other unbeaten NFL teams, each 5-0 — Dallas whipping Washington 34-16 and Baltimore downing Kansas City 17-6. Elsewhere, Cleveland edged Houston 24-23, Buffalo downed Atlanta 3-0, Miami stopped the New York Jets 21-7, New England nipped San Diego

24-20, Detroit edged Green Bay 10-6, Los Angeles beat New Orleans 14-7, St. Louis topped Philadelphia 21-17, the New York Giants handled San Francisco 20-17 and Seattle outlasted Tampa Bay 30-23.

Cowboys 34, Redskins 16

Efren Herrera kicked field goals of 44 and 52 yards, Roger Staubach threw a 59-yard touchdown pass to Drew Pearson and Robert Newhouse scored a six-yard TD in the Cowboys' second-half explosion at Dallas. Washington had one net yard passing as Billy Kilmer was sacked five times.

Colts 17, Chiefs 6

"It wasn't pretty, but it was successful," said Baltimore quarterback Bert Jones of the Colts' struggle against winless Kansas City. Baltimore wrapped up the game in the first quarter on short touchdown runs by Ron Lee and Don McCauley.

Browns 24, Oilers 23

Houston's Billy Johnson returned a punt 87 yards for a touchdown before Cleveland took a 21-20 halftime lead on the strength of Brian Sipe's short TD toss. Houston went head 23-21 on Tony Fritch's third field goal of the game in the fourth quarter, but Don Cockroft won it for the Browns on the final play of the game with a 36-yard three-pointer.

Bills 3, Falcons 0

O.J. Simpson's seven-yard run on third down to the Atlanta 13-yard line set up Neil O'Donoghue's 30-yard field goal in the second quarter as the Bills snapped a 14-game losing streak before only 27,348 fans, the smallest crowd in the five-year history of Buffalo's Rich Stadium.

Simpson's 138 yards rushing also pushed him to 10,062, making him only the second man to break the 10,000-yard mark in NFL history. The other is Jim Brown, who retired with 12,312 yards.

Dolphins 21, Jets 17

The Dolphins raced to a 21-3 halftime lead on two Bob Griese scoring passes and a five-yard touchdown run by Benny Malone, who had 105 yards in the game, then held off the Jets who got two scores on one-yard runs by Clark Gaines.

Patriots 24, Chargers 20

Lions 10, Packers 6

"You silence the boos by winning," said Greg Landry after his nine-yard touchdown pass to Ray Jarvis with 3:01 remaining gave the Lions their victory. Green Bay had gone ahead 6-3 on Cester Marcol's second field of the game in the third quarter.

Rams 14, Saints 7

"I did things to win. But I did not give a sterling performance," said Pat Haden, who played quarterback in place of Joe Namath and guided Los Angeles to a 14-7 win that tied the Rams with Atlanta at 3-2 for the NFC West lead. Lawrence McCutcheon's one-yard run and Wendell Tyler's 16-yard dash accounted for the Los Angeles touchdowns.

Cardinals 21, Eagles 17

Jim Hart, playing with a neck injury, threw a 38-yard touchdown pass and Terry Metcalf ran 10 yards for one touchdown and Jerry Latini two yards for another as the Cardinals built up a 21-3 lead at Philadelphia, then withstood two fourth-quarter scoring passes by Ron Jaworski.

Giants 20, 49ers 17

The Giants kept San Francisco winless by withstanding two late 49er touchdowns after building a 20-3 lead on two field goals, a 37-yard touchdown pass by Joe Pisarcik and Willie Spencer's one-yard scoring run.

Seahawks 30, Buccaneers 23

Steve Myer threw touchdown passes of 8, 4, 45 and 44 yards, with the last one breaking a 23-23 tie and giving the Seahawks a victory that kept Tampa winless in 19 games since it joined the NFL last season. "We tackled like a bunch of guys in junior high," said Tampa Bay Coach John McKay.

Third String Catcher Is Pacemaker For The Yankees

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

He hasn't rapped out a hit. He hasn't scored a run. In fact, he hasn't been in an official game since Aug. 31 and he's appeared in only one since Aug. 12.

Yet, if the New York Yankees should go on to win the World Series, he should be given some consideration for the Most Valuable Player award.

His name is Francis Xavier Healy. To feuding Reggie Jackson and Thurman Munson and maybe even to Manager Billy Martin, he should be called "St. Francis."

St. Francis the Peacemaker. "If it hadn't been for Fran, I am not sure I could have survived all the pressure of the summer," says Jackson, the team's volatile $2.9 million outfielder.

"He's been a mountain of strength for me."

Munson, the Yankees' proud and sensitive catcher, speaks in less flamboyant language but the message comes across just the same.

"A great friend — I appreciate everything he has done," adds Munson.

When Jackson and Munson were at each other's throats after the big, mustachioed catcher took offense at a remark attributed to Jackson in a magazine article — "I am the straw that stirs the drink, Munson could only stir it bad" — it was Healy who smoothed the waters.

When Jackson and Martin almost came to blows in the dugout after Jackson was yanked from a nationally-televised game at Boston in June, it was Healy who prevented the incident from becoming a disruptive flareup.

When the Yankees appeared near collapse from internal bickering in mid-August, it was Healy who got Munson and Jackson together and, as a group, interceded to save Martin's job with owner George Steinbrenner.

"Aw, I've done nothing," insists the 6-foot-5, soft-natured third string catcher from Holyoke, Mass. "I'm a good friend of Reggie's. I am also a good friend of Thurman's and a good friend of Billy's."

"I don't want to see these guys cut each other up."

Healy, 31, began his big league career at Kansas City in 1969, played briefly at San Francisco, returned to Kansas City, then came to the Yankees in exchange for Larry Gura in 1976.

Healy appeared in 46 games for the Yankees in 1976, filling in well for Munson in mid-summer, but has seen less service this season because of the acquisition of another backup catcher, Cliff Johnson.

"I got to know Reggie when he was with Oakland and I was with Kansas City," Healy says. "When Reggie came to the Yankees, he, Munson and I hit it off well. We went out together and ribbed each other all the time."

"After Reggie's magazine article appeared, the relationship between Reggie and Thurman cooled. I tried my best to keep them both loose."

Says Jackson: "I was going through hell at this time. I was getting creamed by the press. The fans were on me. My father quit going to Yankee games. My mother wouldn't listen to them."

"I got moody and depressed," says Jackson. "It was Fran who jolted me out of it. He talked to me hours on end. He helped me beat my batting slump. He was a guiding light."

Healy scoffs at the suggestion that he is a diamond Dr. Kissinger.

"They talk about this being a team of egos," he said. "I think it's a euphemism for pride. The owner, Jackson and Munson are all proud and highly charged."

"They all want to win. This generates sparks and drive. That's why the Yankees win. They don't accept defeat gracefully."

"I am friendly with both Reggie and Thurman, but they are different. Reggie reflects first, then reacts. Thurman reacts, then reflects."

"They complement each other. They are volatile. But they are great for baseball, great for the Yankees."

Baseball Player's Wife, Daughter Die In Accident

SOMERSET, Pa. (AP) — The wife and 2-year-old daughter of Cleveland Indians baseball first baseman Andre Thornton were killed today in an accident on the Pennsylvania Turnpike.

Dead are Gertrude Thornton, 28, and the couple's daughter Theresa.

Thornton, 28, and 4-year-old Andre Thornton Jr. were taken to Somerset Community Hospital for treatment. The family lived in Chagrin Falls, Ohio, but also listed a West Chester, Pa., residence, police said.

State police said the accident occurred about five miles east of Somerset in the eastbound lane. Details were sketchy, but authorities noted the road surface was icy.

Thornton, who was driving, and his son were both reported in good condition. A hospital spokeswoman said they were both expected to be released.

Thornton sustained abrasions to the left side of his head, but x-rays proved negative. The boy suffered a bloody nose and complained of pain in the back of his head. X-rays were negative on him.

The Indians of the American League acquired Thornton in 1976 in a trade with the Montreal Expos of the National League.

Bartender Guilty Of Negligent Homicide

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Akron Municipal Court Judge Robert Hartnett placed bartender Joseph Hall, 37, on six months probation Friday on a charge of negligent homicide in the death of a 13-year-old boy.

The dead youth, Kevin Jones, accidentally shot himself with a gun he picked up in the tavern where Hall works.

Hall was found guilty of negligent homicide last month for leaving the gun where the boy could pick it up.

Efren Herrera kicked field goals of 44 and 52 yards, Roger Staubach threw a 59-yard touchdown pass to Drew Pearson and Robert Newhouse scored a six-yard TD in the Cowboys' second-half explosion at Dallas. Washington had one net yard passing as Billy Kilmer was sacked five times.

Colts 17, Chiefs 6

"It wasn't pretty, but it was successful," said Baltimore quarterback Bert Jones of the Colts' struggle against winless Kansas City. Baltimore wrapped up the game in the first quarter on short touchdown runs by Ron Lee and Don McCauley.

Browns 24, Oilers 23

Houston's Billy Johnson returned a punt 87 yards for a touchdown before Cleveland took a 21-20 halftime lead on the strength of Brian Sipe's short TD toss. Houston went head 23-21 on Tony Fritch's third field goal of the game in the fourth quarter, but Don Cockroft won it for the Browns on the final play of the game with a 36-yard three-pointer.

Bills 3, Falcons 0

O.J. Simpson's seven-yard run on third down to the Atlanta 13-yard line set up Neil O'Donoghue's 30-yard field goal in the second quarter as the Bills snapped a 14-game losing streak before only 27,348 fans, the smallest crowd in the five-year history of Buffalo's Rich Stadium.

Simpson's 138 yards rushing also pushed him to 10,062, making him only the second man to break the 10,000-yard mark in NFL history. The other is Jim Brown, who retired with 12,312 yards.

Dolphins 21, Jets 17

The Dolphins raced to a 21-13 halftime lead on two Bob Griese scoring passes and a five-yard touchdown run by Benny Malone, who had 105 yards in the game, then held off the Jets who got two scores on one-yard runs by Clark Gaines.

Patriots 24, Chargers 20

Steve Grogan hit Don Hasselbeck with a one-yard pass for a 7-0 New England lead and then clinched the victory with a four-yard toss to Hasselbeck with 3:09 left in the game. Sam Cunningham rushed for 141 yards for the Patriots.

Lions 10, Packers 6

"You silence the boos by winning," said Greg Landry after his nine-yard touchdown pass to Ray Jarvis with 3:01 remaining gave the Lions their victory. Green Bay had gone ahead 6-3 on Cester Marcol's second field of the game in the third quarter.

Rams 14, Saints 7

"I did things to win. But I did not give a sterling performance," said Pat Haden, who played quarterback in place of Joe Namath and guided Los Angeles to a 14-7 win that tied the Rams with Atlanta at 3-2 for the NFC West lead. Lawrence McCutcheon's one-yard run and Wendell Tyler's 16-yard dash accounted for the Los Angeles touchdowns.

Cardinals 21, Eagles 17

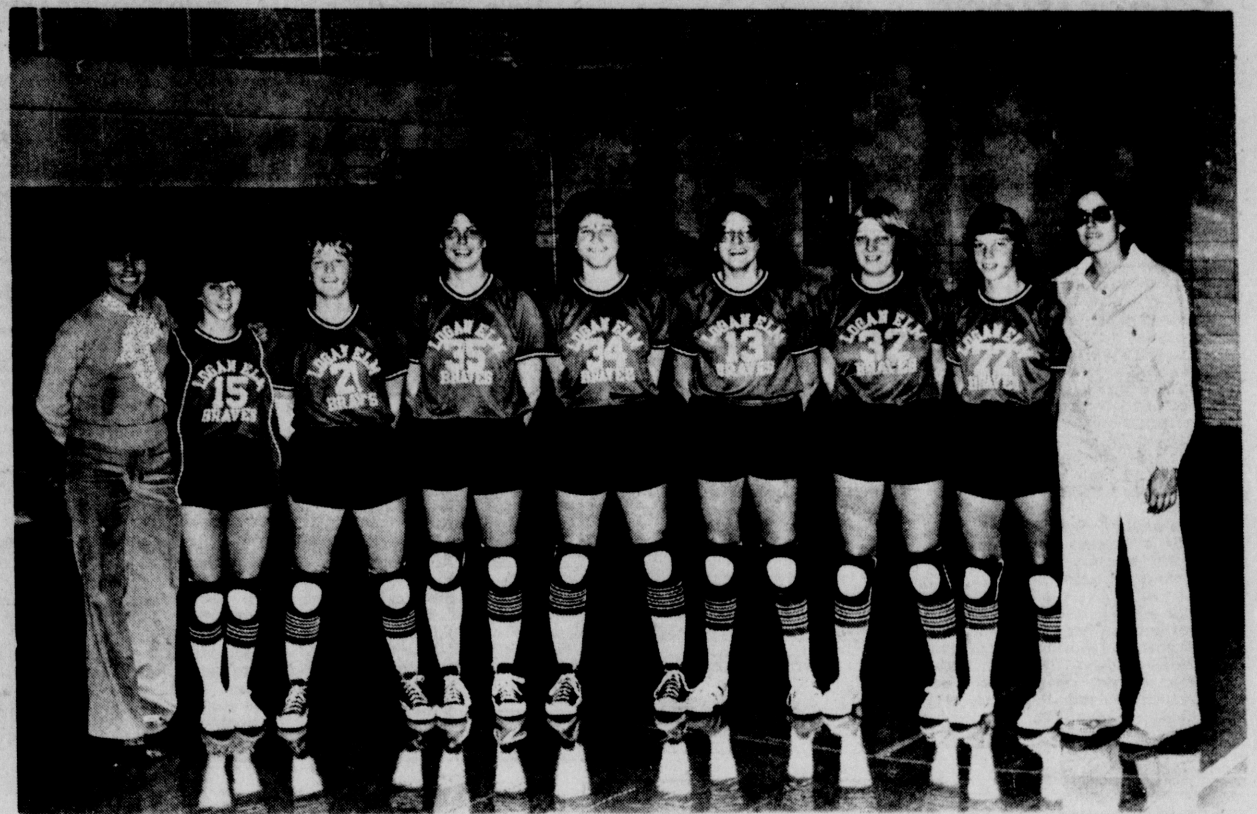

Jim Hart, playing with a neck injury, threw a 38-yard touchdown pass and Terry Metcalf ran 10 yards for one touchdown and Jerry Lattin two yards for another as the Cardinals built up a 21-3 lead at Philadelphia, then withstood two fourth-quarter scoring passes by Ron Jaworski.

Giants 20, 49ers 17

The Giants kept San Francisco winless by withstanding two late 49er touchdowns after building a 20-3 lead on two field goals, a 37-yard touchdown pass by Joe Pisarcik and Willie Spencer's one-yard scoring run.

Seahawks 30, Buccaneers 23

Steve Myer threw touchdown passes of 8, 4, 45 and 44 yards, with the last one breaking a 23-23 tie and giving the Seahawks a victory that kept Tampa winless in 19 games since it joined the NFL last season. "We tackled like a bunch of guys in junior high," said Tampa Bay Coach John McKay.

Gifford, Susan Delong and assistant coach Susan McBroom. The Braves beat Circleville for the first time in four years Wednesday and will visit Lancaster Fisher Catholic Tuesday in Mid-State League competition.

Third String Catcher Is Pacemaker For The Yankees

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

He hasn't rapped out a hit. He hasn't scored a run. In fact, he hasn't been in an official game since Aug. 31 and he's appeared in only one since Aug. 12.

Yet, if the New York Yankees should go on to win the World Series, he should be given some consideration for the Most Valuable Player award.

His name is Francis Xavier Healy. To feuding Reggie Jackson and Thurman Munson and maybe even to Manager Billy Martin, he should be called "St. Francis."

St. Francis the Peacemaker. "If it hadn't been for Fran, I am not sure I could have survived all the pressure of the summer," says Jackson, the team's volatile $2.9 million outfielder.

"He's been a mountain of strength for me."

Munson, the Yankees' proud and sensitive catcher, speaks in less flamboyant language but the message comes across just the same.

"A great friend — I appreciate everything he has done," adds Munson.

When Jackson and Munson were at each other's throats after the big, mustachioed catcher took offense at a remark attributed to Jackson in a magazine article — "I am the straw that stirs the drink, Munson could only stir it bad" — it was Healy who smoothed the waters.

When Jackson and Martin almost came to blows in the dugout after Jackson was yanked from a nationally televised game at Boston in June, it was Healy who prevented the incident from becoming a disruptive flareup.

When the Yankees appeared near collapse from internal bickering in mid-August, it was Healy who got Munson and Jackson together and, as a group, interceded to save Martin's job with owner George Steinbrenner.

"Aw, I've done nothing," insists the 6-foot-5, soft-natured third string catcher from Holyoke, Mass. "I'm a good friend of Reggie's. I am also a good friend of Thurman's and a good friend of Billy's."

"I don't want to see these guys cut each other up."

Healy, 31, began his big league career at Kansas City in 1969, played briefly at San Francisco, returned to Kansas City, then came to the Yankees in exchange for Larry Gura in 1976.

Healy appeared in 46 games for the Yankees in 1976, filling in well for Munson in mid-summer, but has seen less service this season because of the acquisition of another backup catcher, Cliff Johnson.

"I got to know Reggie when he was with Oakland and I was with Kansas City," Healy says. "When Reggie came to the Yankees, he, Munson and I hit it off well. We went out together and ribbed each other all the time."

"After Reggie's magazine article appeared, the relationship between Reggie and Thurman cooled. I tried my best to keep them both loose."

Says Jackson: "I was going through hell at this time. I was getting creamed by the press. The fans were on me. My father quit going to Yankee games. My mother wouldn't listen to them."

"I got moody and depressed," says Jackson. "It was Fran who jolted me out of it. He talked to me hours on end. He helped me beat my batting slump. He was a guiding light."

Healy scoffs at the suggestion that he is a diamond Dr. Kissinger.

"They talk about this being a team of egos," he said. "I think it's a euphemism for pride. The owner, Jackson and Munson are all proud and highly charged."

"They all want to win. This generates sparks and drive. That's why the Yankees win. They don't accept defeat gracefully."

"I am friendly with both Reggie and Thurman, but they are different. Reggie reflects first, then reacts. Thurman reacts, then reflects."

"They complement each other. They are volatile. But they are great for baseball, great for the Yankees."

Baseball Player's Wife, Daughter Die In Accident

SOMERSET, Pa. (AP) — The wife and 2-year-old daughter of Cleveland Indians baseball first baseman Andre Thornton were killed today in an accident on the Pennsylvania Turnpike.

Dead are Gertrude Thornton, 28, and the couple's daughter Theresa.

Thornton, 28, and 4-year-old Andre Thornton Jr. were taken to Somerset Community Hospital for treatment. The family lived in Chagrin Falls, Ohio, but also listed a West Chester, Pa., residence, police said.

State police said the accident occurred about five miles east of Somerset in the eastbound lane. Details were sketchy, but authorities noted the road surface was icy.

Thornton, who was driving, and his son were both reported in good condition. A hospital spokeswoman said they were both expected to be released.

Thornton sustained abrasions to the left side of his head, but x-rays proved negative. The boy suffered a bloody nose and complained of pain in the back of his head. X-rays were negative on him.

The Indians of the American League acquired Thornton in 1976 in a trade with the Montreal Expos of the National League.

Bartender Guilty Of Negligent Homicide

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Akron Municipal Court Judge Robert Hartnett placed bartender Joseph Hall, 37, on six months probation Friday on a charge of negligent homicide in the death of a 13-year-old boy.

The dead youth, Kevin Jones, accidentally shot himself with a gun he picked up in the tavern where Hall works.

Hall was found guilty of negligent homicide last month for leaving the gun where the boy could pick it up.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth sign.

FOR TUESDAY
ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Streamline operations to meet present needs. Some activities may have to be dropped if they are not producing. But do not drop projects now running smoothly.
TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): You seem to have the inside track now, so take advantage of it. Good opportunities indicated, but grasp them quickly or you could lose out.
GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Mercury, favorable, now premises increasing gains. But some minor situations may have to be ironed out before you can go ahead with long-range ventures.
CANCER (June 22 to July 23): You may be given some extra responsibilities but, if the end result seems worthwhile, accept them — ambitiously.
LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Do not envy others. Successful acquaintances can actually assist you. You have an analytical mind and penetrating insight: Use them.
VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): If things don't seem to be going quite "as usual," ask questions. Some changes may have been made, some new procedure indicated of which you are not — but should be — aware.
LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Fine planetary influences now stimulate your imagination, spark new and lofty ambitions, give you a fresh outlook on life.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 23): Here is a chance for your special gifts of inspirational planning and organizing, under either revised or completely new methods. Do make the most of it!
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Mixed influences. Plan to clear up any confusing situations. Security must be built up on a sound basis. Intelligently productive methods needed.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Invest time and energies only in projects worthy of your endeavor. In a rush to accomplish, however, don't by-pass details.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Uranus somewhat adverse. Watch for irritating situations and bridge them amicably and with unbiased opinion. Move briskly into productive areas.
PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): A more or less average day. Better finish, or at least further, current projects. Starting new undertakings without proper preparation could lead to disappointment.

YOU BORN TODAY are a highly sensitive individual, endowed with great artistry and a strong sense of justice. Whatever you undertake, you carry on with proficiency and imagination. The Libran has been known to rearrange, completely change an organization to a livelier busier one. You have a great love of beauty, a romantic nature and are enthusiastic about all the best in life. Fields in which you could make the greatest success: the law, statesmanship, writing, the theater, medicine and government work. Birthdate of: Thomas Love Peacock, novelist, poet; Inger Stevens and Melina Mercouri, actresses.

Latvia was admitted to the U.S.S.R. as the 14th Soviet Republic on Aug. 3, 1940.

Views On Television

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When Barry Gordon was only three years old, he climbed on a chair, sang "Cry" and won a preliminary round in "Ted Mack's Original Amateur Hours."

That and the fact he lost in the finals to an Italian orphan's choir, he has assured him lasting oblivion. But 25 years later, he's still in show biz, a regular on ABC's "Fish" series.

"I shouldn't have expected miracles," he laughed, explaining that the Mack effort began as a neighbor's gag. "If there were to be miracles, I would've gone into the Italian orphan's choir."

It's one of the ironies of acting that Gordon, son of an ex-radio announcer, plays a bumbling child psychologist in "Fish."

At 13, he played an object of concern to a child psychologist in "A Thousand Clowns." The kiddie shrink in the hit play was trying to take Gordon away from his happy-go-lucky uncle, played by Jason Robards.

But Gordon, who starred in both the Broadway and film version of "Clowns," seems to have grown up eminently well-adjusted, even though he was performing most of the years he was growing.

Born in Brookline, Mass., briefly raised in Albany, N.Y., his fledgling "Cry" led to other singing jobs on other major TV shows and then a hit record, "Nuttin' For Christmas," at age six.

That led to a Las Vegas stint in "Ken Murray's Blackouts" and a chat there with Sheldon Leonard of the "Make Room For Daddy" series. The chat led to his first acting job and a temporary farewell to singing.

Gordon said his family moved to Los Angeles, and while his father tried to get into radio here, he proceeded into acting, appearing in such TV shows as "Alfred Hitchcock" and the "GE Theater."

But after "Clowns," he had trouble finding work, had the child star blues. And, he said, rather than rush into a bad movie and "take a giant step backward," he hit the books, then enrolled at UCLA.

He dropped out after a while to study guitar, write songs and make the rounds of record studios. He even cut one album. Alas, it was mellow music in an era of ear-shattering acid rock, and it didn't sell.

But Gordon, a surprisingly good guitarist and vocalist whose music is in the Kenny Rankin vein, hasn't given up on singing, even though he's succeeding as an actor again, getting good weekly exposure in "Fish."

Teeth Lead To Success

YADKINVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Stanley Allen says the secret to his success is the crack between his front teeth.

Allen outspat a group of men and women of all ages to take the grand prize — a spittoon — in the weekend Harvest Festival tobacco-spitting contest. His winning mark: 20 feet, 5 1/2 inches.

Allen, a 30-year-old resident of Tobaccoville, says he has the benefit of many years of experience. He has been chewing since he was 14, and he doesn't care if some people think his expectorating is unbecoming.

"They say it doesn't look nice," Allen said.

Among the competitors was Mabel Brinkley, 55, of East Bend.

After her 15-foot effort, she said: "Most women dip snuff. But chewing tobacco doesn't make a mess the way dipping snuff does."

"You don't get it on your mouth."

Low Pressure Spreads Rain

By The Associated Press

A low pressure system in southern New England has been spreading rain and thunderstorms from Virginia to Maine.

The same system was responsible for rain and snow extending from New York State and Pennsylvania into the lower Great Lakes and upper Ohio Valley.

Gale warnings are in effect along the southern New England coast.

Frost and freeze warnings were out for Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois and Ohio.

Frost and freeze warnings also were posted for Tennessee and for the south Carolina mountains and midlands.

Early morning temperatures around the nation ranged from 20 at Pelston, Mich., to 78 at Phoenix, Ariz.

School Will Close

Due to an electrical problem that will take a full day to fix, the Stoutsville school will be closed Wednesday.

The announcement was made today by building principal Wayne Evans, and it affects only those students that attend the Stoutsville building.

Mainly About People

Paul Chester, of Williamsport, has been removed from the Intensive Care Unit of Ross County Medical Center, Chillicothe. He is currently in room 3-B-31.

Cooperation Is Asked Of Citizens

Circleville City Schools Superintendent Fritz Jacobs is asking the cooperation of residents living in the area of the Corwin Street Elementary School. Recents acts of vandalism to the building have cost the city school system hundreds of dollars. Jacobs is asking anyone seeing suspicious persons or vandals near the school to call the Circleville Police Department immediately.

"Starting immediately, we will consider the area of the Corwin Street School, including the rear of the school and the playground, off limits except to authorized personnel. Anyone found in those restricted areas will be prosecuted for trespassing," stated Jacobs.

The first interurban originated in Ohio Dec. 28, 1888, on a line operating between Newark and Granville. —AP

Among the competitors was Mabel Brinkley, 55, of East Bend.

After her 15-foot effort, she said: "Most women dip snuff. But chewing tobacco doesn't make a mess the way dipping snuff does."

"You don't get it on your mouth."

School Will Close

Due to an electrical problem that will take a full day to fix, the Stoutsville school will be closed Wednesday.

The announcement was made today by building principal Wayne Evans, and it affects only those students that attend the Stoutsville building.

Mainly About People

Paul Chester, of Williamsport, has been removed from the Intensive Care Unit of Ross County Medical Center, Chillicothe. He is currently in room 3-B-31.

Cooperation Is Asked Of Citizens

Circleville City Schools Superintendent Fritz Jacobs is asking the cooperation of residents living in the area of the Corwin Street Elementary School. Recent acts of vandalism to the building have cost the city school system hundreds of dollars. Jacobs is asking anyone seeing suspicious persons or vandals near the school to call the Circleville Police Department immediately.

"Starting immediately, we will consider the area of the Corwin Street School, including the rear of the school and the playground, off limits except to authorized personnel. Anyone found in those restricted areas will be prosecuted for trespassing," stated Jacobs.

The first interurban originated in Ohio Dec. 28, 1888, on a line operating between Newark and Granville. —AP

Meet the hardest working banker in the state.

BancOhio's AnytimeBank® machines never rest. They're ready and waiting to make your banking easier 24 hours a day all year round.

There's cash waiting for you all around Ohio.

If you're traveling and your wallet hits empty, no problem!
Because you can get cash at more than 70 BancOhio AnytimeBank locations around the state.

Banking couldn't be easier!

These machines are ready when you are.
At our AnytimeBank machines, you can take care of most any banking service...deposits, transfers, payments, even get cash.
And it's as easy as 1-2-3. The machine shows you what to do, one step at a time.

Get yourself an extra checkbook! What do you do when you need cash and your checkbook isn't along for the ride? Pull up to any BancOhio AnytimeBank machine. You can get cash from your checking account. Or a cash advance if you have an encoded BancOhio Master Charge.

You don't have to plan your day around getting to our bank.

Always Welcome

AnytimeBank machines are open around the clock. So you don't have to worry about banking hours, or lines at the teller window.

What's it take to bank whenever you want to bank?

Start with a BancOhio checking account. Add our statement savings account. And either a BancOhio AnytimeBank or Master Charge card.

Apply at any BancOhio office during regular banking hours. So you can bank with us at any hour!

BancOhio Second National Bank

Member FDIC

COUNTRY CHICKEN AND POTATO STEW

1 broiler-fryer (about 3 pounds), cut up
1 can (10 3/4 ounces) condensed cream of chicken soup
3 tablespoons red wine
3 stalks celery, cut up
1 medium onion, quartered

1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon thyme leaves
3 medium potatoes, peeled and quartered
4 medium carrots, peeled and cut in large chunks

Under broiler, brown chicken pieces, skin-side up. Drain off fat. In large, heavy kettle or Dutch oven, place chicken. 1 1/2 cups water and remaining ingredients, except potatoes and carrots. Cover and cook 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. Skim off surface fat. Add potatoes and carrots, cook 30 minutes more or until chicken and vegetables are tender.

Fresh, Tender California

When selecting cauliflower keep in mind that the size of the head does not affect quality. The curd should be white (not yellowed), very firm and compact. Loose, open clusters indicate over maturity and spotted, speckled or bruised curds should be avoided.

Cauliflower can be used in soup, used raw in fresh salads, or boiled and served buttered, creamed, au gratin, or Polonaise. Avoid overcooking, when the stem end yields to the touch of a fork, boiled cauliflower is done.

CAULIFLOWER WITH CAPER SAUCE

1 Large Head Cauliflower
1 Tablespoon Corn Starch
3 Tablespoons Butter
2 Tablespoons Capers

3 Tablespoons Lemon Juice
1 Tablespoon Grated Onion
1/4 Teaspoon Black Pepper
1 Teaspoon Turmeric

Remove outer green leaves from one large head Cauliflower. Break into flowerlets. Place in sauce pan with boiling salted water 1" deep. Bring to boil and simmer 5 minutes or until the cauliflower is tender. Drain liquid from Cauliflower, reserving 1 cup. Blend together reserved liquid and Corn Starch. Add Butter, Lemon Juice, Grated Onion, Black Pepper and Turmeric. Salt to taste. Cook, stirring, until sauce thickens. Add capers, pour sauce over Cauliflower to serve.
